

ARMY-MCCARTHY HEARINGS BARED 'SALIENT' FACTS, MUNDT ASSERTS

Hensel Demands Subcommittee Dismiss Charges Against Him and Rebuke Wisconsin Senator.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Senator Karl E. Mundt (Rep., South Dakota), who presided at the 36-day Army-McCarthy hearing, said today Senators could spend the next 20 years investigating that row, and still not get all the facts.

But Mundt told reporters he believes the televised public hearings "brought out the salient facts."

A possible new point of controversy—or at least a resurgence of an old one in the many-sided dispute—was added yesterday when H. Struve Hensel, Assistant Secretary of Defense, demanded the Senate Investigations subcommittee unanimously "dismiss the charges against me . . . with a severe rebuke to Senator McCarthy."

McCarthy on Indian Tactics. Hensel contended the Wisconsin Republican Senator had admitted the charges were baseless. He said McCarthy once told him the charges were originated in keeping with the teaching of an Indian with whom McCarthy had worked on a farm.

"If one was ever approached by another person in a not completely friendly fashion, one should start kicking at the other person as fast as possible below the belt until the other person was rendered helpless."

(Mundt told the United Press he does not believe the subcommittee will act on Hensel's demand that it rebuke McCarthy.)

"Having dismissed the charges against him (Hensel) with the concurrence and urging of his counsel . . . it would be my feeling that the committee would not go into the matter at all in its findings and report," Mundt said.

Affidavit From Hensel. Hensel submitted a sworn affidavit for the subcommittee record yesterday saying McCarthy admitted he had no factual basis for the charges against him.

In it he said: "The charges made against me by Senator McCarthy and the subcommittee were three."

"A. That I inspired, guided and influenced an attack by the Department of the Army on Senator McCarthy . . . as chairman of the Permanent Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of the United States Senate."

"B. That I was motivated in such action to prevent an alleged investigation of me by said subcommittee; and"

"C. That, during World War II, I might have been involved in certain financial activities which conflicted with my official duties."

"All of such charges were, and still are, false and malicious."

"The fact that Senator McCarthy had no factual basis for his charge that I inspired, influenced and guided the Army in its attack upon him was fully admitted by him in the executive session of this subcommittee held on May 17, 1954."

The affidavit quoted: "Senator Potter (Rep., Michigan): Are you in a position to answer this question, Joe: With the executive order as it now stands, do you feel that you can continue and present your case?"

"Senator McCarthy: 'It would be completely impossible to do that. Let me just go one step further . . .'"

Survey Shows Cigarette Smokers Die Sooner Than Non-Smokers

Lung Cancer and Heart Disease Found to Be Main Cause of Death of Users of Tobacco.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
SAN FRANCISCO, June 21 (AP)—Cigarette smokers die sooner than other men aged 50 to 70 and they die mainly from heart attacks and cancer, an American Cancer Society study reported today.

It finds cigarettes have an effect on other types of cancer as well as lung cancer. Numerically, the biggest effect could be in heart disease, since far more people die of coronary disease than die of lung cancer.

Just what the effect of cigarettes is upon men under 50 or upon men with a good look at some point in their lives, the authors of the report said.

The report is based on interviews in 1952 with 187,766 healthy men aged 50 to 70 about their smoking habits, and a checkup on causes of death of 4754 of them who died within 20 months.

It shows the death rate—from all causes—among the cigarette smokers to be up to 75 per cent higher than among the men who never smoked.

For men who smoked a pack-a-day of cigarettes or more, the death rate from heart disease and cancer is at certain ages double that of non-smokers.

The risk seems to rise the more cigarettes are smoked. Smoking only a pipe or only cigars doesn't seem to affect the death rates except possibly for cancer in general, but this possibility needs further study, the report said.

The findings were reported to the American Medical Association by Drs. E. Cuyler Hammond and Daniel Horn, director and assistant director of statistical research of the A.C.S.

They said they had not expected to have significant results for another year, but that the findings from analysis of deaths so far showed such significance that it was decided not to delay their publication.

The interviewing was done by 22,000 trained A.C.S. volunteers in nine states—New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and California.

Some of the nearly 200,000 men had never smoked or practically never smoked. Some smoke occasionally. Some smoke only cigarettes, some only pipes, some just cigars, some combinations.

WELCH CITES TWO ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF SENATE INQUIRY

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Joseph N. Welch, Army counsel in the Army-McCarthy hearing, said last night the hearing accomplished at least two important things.

"It gave the country a notion about what a Senate hearing is, although the Senators were careful to point out that it wasn't a typical one," and "the country got a good look at some people in whom it had been very much interested and thus was able to . . . form opinions."

Welch's remarks, broadcast over the NBC radio network, had been recorded yesterday in his home at Walpole, Mass.

Welch added that after 36 days of the hearing he still was not sure what a "point of order" is. But he added he found "the magic words" helped get him listened to.

Welch also said "personal privilege" means "you are angry about something or think you've been insulted and you've got a right to speak up if you're a Senator, and say how you feel."

"Of course," he added, "that right didn't attach to me, being a mere lawyer."

Comparing the hearing with a courtroom, Welch said he was still hearing. "In a Senate hearing, broadly speaking, anything goes."

RUSSIAN CHESS PLAYERS LEAD U.S. 10½ POINTS TO 4½

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Russia's top chess players, after the second round of their match with America's best, are just six points away from certain victory.

As the third round opens tonight, the Russians lead 10½ to 4½. They were expected to win, but it is a matter of pride for the American team to make it as close as possible. Anything over 16 points would clinch the match for the Russians, who are playing in the United States for the first time.

The game between 26-year-old Robert Byrne and the veteran Russian Alexander Kotov was adjourned yesterday for the second time, after 72 moves and nine hours of play. Byrne lost his first game with Kotov.

The three youngest American players, Donald Byrne, brother of Robert; Arthur Bisguier, and Larry Evans are even with their opponents. The No. 1 United States player, Samuel Reshevsky, and his Russian opposite number, Vassily Smyslov, have drawn both games.

American Israel Horowitz lost his first-round game and drew the second against Efim Geller. American Max Paley lost his second game to Paul Keres.

The winner of the game gets one point, and a draw gives half a point to each player. Each player faces the same opponent four times in the tournament.

BEDELL SMITH SAYS EFFORTS FOR ASIAN TRUCE WILL CONTINUE

But U.S. Role in Indochina Talks Will Be Only That of Interested Nation, Not a Principal, He Adds.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.
WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith flew home from the Geneva conference today with a pledge that the West will continue "a sincere, patient effort" to negotiate an Indochina peace settlement.

Smith blamed "inflexible opposition by the Communists" for failure of the Geneva talks to arrive at a permanent settlement for Korea.

His return from the talks with the Reds preceded by only a few days a visit here by Britain's Prime Minister Churchill during which President Eisenhower probably will urge British cooperation in setting up an international conference on anti-Communist defenses in Southeast Asia.

Hopes that the British were ready to go along on such a plan had begun to wane over the past weekend, however, partly as a result of French political developments and partly because of apparent concessions made by the Reds to keep the Geneva talks going.

Indochina Outlook. The French development which dimmed the united front outlook was the installation of a new government headed by Pierre Mendes-France, who promised a settlement in Indochina—or his resignation—within a month.

Smith, arriving in Washington after serving seven weeks as chief of the American delegation in unsuccessful talks with the Reds at Geneva, stopped in Paris yesterday for confidential talks with the new premier.

Asked whether those conversations aroused fear that the new French leader might offer sweeping concessions to the Reds in order to obtain a ceasefire, Smith replied: "I have nothing to say about that."

A few hours after Smith's arrival, the White House announced that Mr. Eisenhower is inviting the leaders of Congress, from both parties, to a briefing by the under secretary Wednesday morning.

About 30 key legislators will attend to get a first-hand report from Smith on the Geneva talks and related developments. The President told his news conference that such a briefing would be held before any further decisions on the Indochinese war and the Communist menace to all Southeast Asia.

Smith himself had little to promise except that his country will keep trying for peace.

"Basic Issues Clear." "On Indochina, the basic issues between the two sides have also been made clear," he told reporters.

"We have stated unmistakably the principles which we believe are essential to a just and lasting settlement. In an effort to establish those principles, the United States and its associates have made a sincere, patient effort to negotiate, and this effort will continue."

United States' role during the rest of the Geneva meeting, he said, will be that of a "friendly and interested nation, neither a belligerent or a principal in the negotiations."

Talks On Korea. In talking about the Korean phase of the Geneva parley he declared: "We explored every possibility of a settlement. We met with inflexible opposition by the Communists, and we were unable to make progress toward the unification of Korea as a free and independent state."

"We exposed the fact that at least for the present the Communists are unwilling to recognize the role of the United Nations in Korea, or to permit the United States to participate in the decision of their own future."

"Throughout the negotiations we maintained our basic unity with our Allies and this is demonstrated in the final declaration of the 16 nations with which we are associated."

"This declaration which ended the Korean phase, stressed the moral authority of the United Nations and gave the answer of the representatives of the free world to Communist intransigence."

Smith is expected to make a more detailed report soon to President Eisenhower.

Churchill Due Friday. Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden are due to arrive here Friday. Their talks with Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will be informal and, aids indicate, as secret as possible.

The Indochina crisis is the No. 1 topic for their discussions. Others include the organization of a European Defense Community and atomic energy problems.

United States officials said the American government is still "highly interested" getting a united front of allied European and Asian nations set up to halt and contain Communism.

REVEALS ARMY PUNISHED PERESS CASE FIGURES

Gen. Ridgway Says 'Proper Disciplinary Action' Has Been Taken.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., June 21 (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, has disclosed that "proper disciplinary action" has been taken against the officers who gave an honorable discharge to Maj. Irving Peress, a key figure in the Army-McCarthy row.

He declined to name the officers, or report the action taken against them. The Army has admitted the case was mishandled, but Ridgway's statement, made in San Francisco Friday night, was the first indication of any punishment.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), frequently referred to the major as a "fifth amendment Communist" because he refused on constitutional grounds to say whether he was or had been a Communist. McCarthy demanded that the Army hand over to his Senate investigations subcommittee the names of the officers who promoted and honorably discharged the New York dentist.

In an interview here yesterday as he arrived to visit his mother, Mrs. Ruth Ridgway, Gen. Ridgway said he doubts that the Army-McCarthy dispute had lowered morale in the Army.

"As for the actual spirit of our soldiers," he said, "I am confident the American people have nothing to worry about."

ARBENZ INVOKES MARTIAL LAW AND MOBILIZES FOR SHOWDOWN

Appeals for All Private Cars for Moving Troops — Anti-Reds Report 3-Pronged Advance Continuing.

TEGUCIGALPA, June 2 (INS)—Rebel leaders said today they have sent an ultimatum to the Guatemalan government of President Jacobo Arbenz to capitulate by 3 p.m. (St. Louis time) or face bloodshed in the Central American country.

By SAM SUMMERLIN
TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, June 21 (AP)—President Jacobo Arbenz of Guatemala proclaimed martial law throughout his invaded country today as his Communist-backed government mobilized for a showdown battle with anti-Red rebels.

Insurgent leaders claimed their forces were pushing ahead in a three-pronged drive aimed at key rail and road communications in the southern part of the country.

Rebels Report Bombing. The insurgents announced the bombing of Coban, a garrison town in central Guatemala, and threatened to bomb Guatemala City, the capital.

All residents of the capital were urged in a clandestine radio broadcast of the Guatemalan anti-Communist "liberation army" to take cover—an obvious bid to shake the grip Arbenz has sought to clamp on the country through the imposition of martial law.

Headquarters of the resistance movement in Tegucigalpa said Coban, a town of about 7000 population in the highlands 60 miles north of Guatemala City, was bombed yesterday by planes that took off from Escupulas, a southern Guatemalan town.

(A United Press dispatch from Tegucigalpa said the anti-Communist forces had set up a rebel government in an unidentified captured city in Guatemala and appealed for recognition by other nations as belligerents under international law.)

The martial law decree was announced late last night, following a government appeal for all private cars to be turned in for use in moving troops. Reports from Guatemala said the decisive phase of the battle for that neighboring Central American nation may come within 48 hours.

Anti-U.S. Sentiment Grows. Associated Press correspondent Jack Rutledge, in Guatemala City, quoted Guatemalan army officers as saying no field action had yet been fought. They added, however, that a battle could not be delayed much longer.

A wave of anti-United States feeling was sweeping the city and United States Embassy officials were reported to be fearful of a violent mob break out against North Americans. There are about 1200 United States citizens in Guatemala.

Part of the rebel force was reported striking toward the Pan-American highway, near the Salvadoran border. This is a two-headed drive from Nueva Ocotepique, Honduras, toward the town of Jutiapa.

Another invading column was reported moving in from Maculiz, Honduras, about 20 miles west of Puerto Barrios, Guatemala's chief Caribbean port.

The third was reported toward Zacapa, midway on the vital rail line between Puerto Barrios and Guatemala City.

Rebel sources said their planes also are dropping arms in western Guatemala where uprisings against the government have been reported.

President Arbenz was reported to have taken personal charge of defense strategy. It was speculated the taking-over of private Salvadoran planes meant he plans to emulate the famous "taxi-bus army" which France rushed up to defend the Marne river during World War I.

Few Troops to Be Seen. An American woman correspondent in the Guatemalan capital, broadcasting over the Columbia Broadcasting System, reported yesterday the Guatemalan army did not seem to be making any preparations to resist the invasion. She said few troops were to be seen on the streets of the capital city.

The correspondent, Flora Lewis, is representing the London Daily Express in Guatemala City.

Reports from Belize, British Honduras, quoted officials there as saying Guatemala has closed its frontiers with that British crown colony.

Rebel headquarters here reported today that the Guatemalan government is still "highly interested" getting a united front of allied European and Asian nations set up to halt and contain Communism.

TRUMAN 'VERY SATISFACTORY' AFTER OPERATION

Ex-President Reported to Have Slept Well, Sat Up After Gall Bladder Removal.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 21 (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman's post-operative condition was "very satisfactory" at mid-morning today, following removal of his gall bladder and appendix.

Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, who operated on the former President, visited Truman and made the "very satisfactory" report.

(The Associated Press said Truman took his first step and sat up half an hour in bed. Graham said the former President "still is in a lot of pain," but that he slept well during the night and was in good spirits this morning.)

For Truman's sudden, emergency trip to surgery was his first for major medical care. He suffered two gall bladder attacks while in the White House, and once returning home, Graham said, but in each instance, antibiotics were used successfully. This time the antibiotics failed.

No Blood Transfusions. Graham, who was Truman's physician during his tenure in the White House, said the former President was receiving glucose and saline solution "and a lot of other things" intravenously. He has received no blood transfusions.

PEIPING CLAIMS CHINA NOW HAS 600,000,000 PEOPLE

LONDON, June 21 (AP)—Peiping radio says China's population is more than 600,000,000. The figure includes the island of Formosa, controlled by Nationalist forces, and the mainland.

A broadcast heard here last night said Peiping's national census office reported a total of 601,912,371 people, as of midnight June 30, 1953. The broadcast said most of these were counted in a direct census, which it described as the most accurate in China's history. Some areas, including Formosa, were counted by "indirect census," the radio added.

The 1948 census, taken before the Communists conquered the mainland, put China's population at 463,493,418, while Formosa's population in 1950 was listed as 7,617,753.

U.S. EASES WAY FOR 9 BILLIONS MORE IN CREDIT

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The Eisenhower Administration today further eased its banking policies with a step which opens the way for nine billion dollars of additional credit to flow into the national economy.

The Federal Reserve Board announced that over the next six weeks it will make a gradual reduction in the amount of reserves which member banks are required to keep on deposit.

The reduction will release about $1,500,000,000 for use in expanding loans and investments. Since member banks may use the freed reserves for loans and investments up to about six times the amount released, the theoretical expansion of credit amounts to approximately nine billion dollars.

So he started out on a bicycle. A few months later he changed to walking. He carried a clipboard with map attached, notebook and pencil, a spare shoelace and a dictionary, which he literally read from A to Z. Lloyd said he didn't have the faintest idea how many streets he covered.

Lloyd finished his 1500-mile tour yesterday with a stroll down First street, which he bypassed until the end so he could quip "the last street I covered was First."

GUATEMALA HAS TO PICK U.N. OR INTER-AMERICAN FORUM FOR PLEA

Five-Nation Peace Commission to Consider Complaint—Disturbing Reaction to Security Council Session.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The Arbenz government of Guatemala was confronted today with the dilemma of choosing between the United Nations Security Council and the Inter-American Peace Commission as its diplomatic battleground.

Guatemalan diplomats here expected a decision during the day.

The five-nation peace commission was scheduled to meet late today to consider an official Guatemalan complaint, and delegates said the group will convene no matter what happens during the day.

Soviet Veto Boomerangs.—The situation was brought about, Guatemalan strategists said, by these two factors:

1. Expected unfavorable reaction among Latin Americans over the Soviet veto in the U.N. Security Council yesterday upholding Guatemala. They believe many Latin Americans who might otherwise be persuaded to support the Guatemalan cause will take this as proof of United States charges of Communism in Guatemala.

2. Similar propaganda effects from Guatemala's refusal to use inter-American facilities first before going to the U.N.

The Security Council assumed jurisdiction of the Guatemalan situation and ordered a cease-fire after Russia, with its veto, blocked efforts of Latin American countries to have the dispute referred first to the Organization of American States.

The Inter-American Peace Commission is independent of the O.A.S. in that it is responsible directly to the 21 hemisphere governments individually and not to the O.A.S. council.

Guatemala Didn't Subscribe. Guatemala, which has refused to sign treaties under which it could be appealed to the hemisphere's foreign ministers for quick action, took its case today to the U.N. as the only major international organ open to it.

It followed that up, however, with a complaint to the Peace Commission.

The U. N. action apparently mooted the charge to the Peace Commission.

Guatemalan Charge D'Affaires Alfredo Chocano told a reporter he did not know whether his government would withdraw its complaint from the Peace Commission.

He said he was awaiting instructions on this point.

The meeting of the Peace Commission was called by Luis Quintanilla of Mexico, its chairman, after Chocano appealed to the commission yesterday to help restore peace in his country.

Chocano alleged the policy of the United States, which he said was one of "fencing in and boycotting" against Guatemala, had left his country with an air force "which does not permit it to repel the repeated acts of aggression."

U.S. Arms Used, Envoy Says.—At the same time that he directed the appeal to the Inter-American commission, he charged in an interview that war weapons the United States recently air-lifted to Honduras and Nicaragua "are now being used by aggressor forces invading Guatemala."

He also accused Honduras and Nicaragua of sending attacking forces into Guatemala.

The peace commission, composed of Mexico, the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Cuba was authorized by the foreign ministers of the American republics meeting in Havana in 1940, and was used to help bring peace in the Caribbean when revolutionary forces from Cuba, Guatemala and elsewhere attempted an invasion several years ago of the Dominican republic.

Chocano was asked by a reporter to comment on the United States State Department's declaration Saturday that the situation in Guatemala appeared due to internal revolt, rather than to aggression.

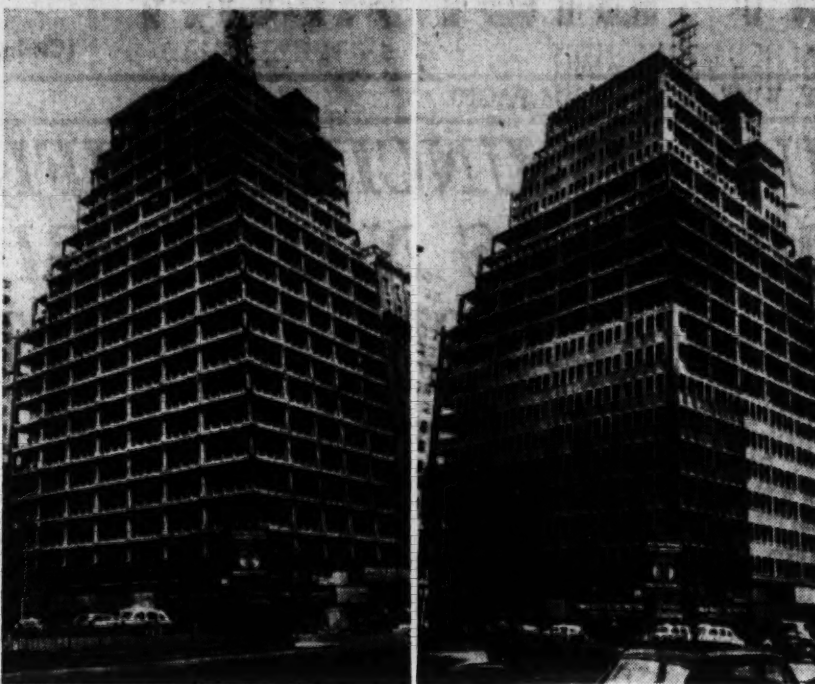

He said: "I never heard of an internal rebellion which was prepared, produced and launched from foreign countries, with headquarters abroad, with foreign military equipment that has never been in the country under attack, and not the slightest sign of any internal participation whatever."

Although the department's statement mentioned uprisings within Guatemala, Chocano said "that is simply not true."

The Guatemalan Embassy said it asked the Inter-American Peace Commission to note the situation but take no action pending the outcome of its appeal to the U.N. Security Council.

Quintanilla said this was where the matter stood, although the petition itself suggested the commission "take the necessary measures to prevent an alteration of the peace and internal security" in that part of Central America.

BATTLE 'LIKE WPA PROJECT' TO REPORTER IN GUATEMALA

Edwin Lahey's Dispatch Apparently Trying to Outguess Censors and Give Picture of Conditions in Capital.

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1954.

GUATEMALA CITY, June 21.—The so-called "Battle of Guatemala" appeared to be progressing like a WPA project today.

Despite rumors to the contrary, there was no evidence that the contending forces had joined in battle (Lahey was probably seeking to evade censorship in using a reference to WPA to show how slowly the conflict was proceeding).

President Jacobo Arbenz and Foreign Minister Guillermo Toriello of Guatemala, charge there has been an invasion of this Republic by Hondurans, Nicaraguans and exiled Guatemalans under the command of Col. Carlos Castillo Armas.

But Guatemalan army headquarters said here today that the head men "know of no military action of importance" and that the activity of the invaders has been limited to a series of acts of provocation and terrorism.

There have been many alarms in this city over the flight of hostile aircraft, which the Government calls "pirate" planes. The city was blacked out three times last night, but no invading planes appeared.

The night rang with sounds of sporadic shooting by civil guards aiming at candlelight in uncovered windows, or at careless motorists who had left their parking lights on.

In Guatemala City, people are preparing for a state of siege. All airplane flights into the city have been canceled. Gasoline has been rationed for use by official automobiles and public buses only.

The Government has warned shopkeepers that it will crack down on profiteering.

Three flights have been made over the city by enemy aircraft since last Friday. On each occasion machine guns atop downtown buildings and around military installations rattled noisily, but without apparent effect.

The raids revealed that a single, beat-up old Thunderbird in the hands of a rebel pilot was able to dominate the skies above Guatemala.

The Government announced that a 2-year-old girl was killed during one of the raids when the marauding plane fired its machine guns.

'HIGH TIME,' SAYS EX-U.S. ENVOY OF GUATEMALAN WAR

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Richard C. Patterson Jr., former United States Ambassador to Guatemala, said yesterday he welcomed the news of the rebellion in that central American nation.

"It was high time that somebody got rid of the Communist-controlled government," he said, "because otherwise, we have Communism in our back yard."

Patterson, now commissioner of public events for New York City, was Ambassador to the Latin American republic from 1948 until 1951. He has been critical of the Guatemalan government, describing it as Communist-infiltrated to "a serious extent."

He declined yesterday to discuss the Guatemalan rebellion any further. "I prefer keeping out of it," he said.

In April 1950, Guatemala complained to the State Department that Patterson had "intervened" in the domestic affairs of Guatemala. His recall was demanded. The State Department rejected Guatemala's charges, but Patterson later was named minister to Switzerland, a post he held until President Eisenhower's inauguration.

COMMUNISTS PROTEST VISIT OF ERIC JOHNSTON TO ISRAEL.

HAIFA, Israel, June 21 (AP)—About 100 Communists attended a protest meeting here yesterday against the visit of Eric Johnston, President Eisenhower's special envoy. He started talks in Jerusalem this afternoon with Prime Minister Sharetz on the American-sponsored Middle East water development scheme.

Johnston arrived Friday from Cairo, where he discussed the scheme with representatives of Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon.

Although the department's statement mentioned uprisings within Guatemala, Chocano said "that is simply not true."

The Guatemalan Embassy said it asked the Inter-American Peace Commission to note the situation but take no action pending the outcome of its appeal to the U.N. Security Council.

Quintanilla said this was where the matter stood, although the petition itself suggested the commission "take the necessary measures to prevent an alteration of the peace and internal security" in that part of Central America.

DEFENSE CHIEFS TO SEEK MORE CUTS IN SPENDING

Also Will Ask Next Congress for Some Kind of Universal Training Program.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—Further cuts in defense spending and strong demands for some sort of universal military training are top items in the Defense Department's program for the next Congress.

The shape of military things to come emerged over the week end at the annual Quantico (Va.) conference of top civilian and military officials, called by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson. President Eisenhower attended on Saturday.

While there was frank acknowledgment of Russian progress in development of nuclear weapons and the modern air power to deliver them, there also was confidence that military forces planned by the Administration are adequate to convince the Soviets they would lose any world war they may start. There was emphasis on long-range guided missiles and atomic powered aircraft.

Highlights of Meetings. These were the highlights, as made known to reporters through briefings and censored texts from the closed meetings:

Manpower.—Congress will be asked next year to approve a modified UMT program designed to create a trained reserve of 3,000,000 men ready for immediate call in event of war. The draft would continue indefinitely. Local boards would select men by drawing lots who would go to the reserve after "few months" of basic training in active forces. An effort will be made to obtain nationwide support for the plan from leaders in all fields.

Money.—Wilson said the goal remains to level off defense spending at an annual rate of 30 to 35 billion dollars. The present rate is $41,500,000,000 and the goal for the fiscal year starting July 1 is just under 38 billion dollars.

Material.—Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss said development of an atomic engine for aircraft is a "major" effort of the AEC and Air Force, and planes will be ordered when the engine is ready. The Air Force emphasized the effort to develop intercontinental guided missiles, a deterrent force which that service ranks with atomic weapons.

Chinese Reds Admit Detaining Only 30 American Civilians

Say 14 Flyers Crashed or Died of Injuries — U.S. Agrees to Let 15 Chinese Leave.

By EDDY GILMORE
GENEVA, June 21 (AP)—The Chinese Communists confirmed today that they are holding 30 American civilians in prison, but said one civilian and a number of military personnel listed by the United States as detained were either dead or missing.

This information was passed on to the United States in the fourth meeting between representatives of the United States and Chinese Communist delegations on the exchange of detained persons.

The United States agreed to permit 15 detained Chinese nationals to leave the United States and return to the China mainland.

The Chinese, on their side, supplied preliminary information on the list of approximately 83 American civilian and military personnel believed by the United States either to be in prison or to be prevented from leaving China.

Missionary Dead.—The Chinese said W. L. Winter, a missionary, had been arrested for espionage, but died in prison Feb. 27, 1951. Winter was a mission worker in a leprosy sanatorium in Kiangsi province.

In the military category, the Chinese said three flyers—P. E. Voorhis, H. D. Weese, and A. D. Hart Jr.—had died of injuries received when they parachuted from their plane over Antung, North China.

(In Washington, Air Force records indicated that Voorhis was First Lt. Paul E. Van Voorhis, of Glen Cove, N. Y. Weese's wife lives at Knobel, Arkansas. Hart was from Saginaw, Mich.)

The United States had listed 11 crew members of a United States naval patrol plane and a rescue plane as probable detainees, but the Chinese representative said the two planes crashed into the sea and the men were missing. The names of these 11 were not disclosed.

The Chinese said one civilian listed by the United States as being in prison was never detained and is now living in Hunan province. He is the Rev. John B. May of Scranton, Pa., a Roman Catholic missionary.

The Chinese did not say when any of those detained would be released—if at all.

Neither the Chinese nor the United States has published a full list of the 83 Americans involved, although the United States submitted such a list to the Communists at an earlier session.

Two Reporters Held.—The Chinese confirmed, however, that they have 30 American civilians in prison—or all the 32 listed by the United States except the two missionaries, May and Winter. In this group were two newspaper correspondents, Donald Dixon of New York City and Richard Applegate of Medford, Ore., as well as merchant marine captain Ben Krasner of Brooklyn and civilian air line pilot Lawrence Buol of Stockton, Calif.

The Chinese also confirmed they were holding 15 of the 18 Air Force personnel listed by the United States as being detained. This list has not been published here by the United States, but it is known to include double ace Capt. Harold Fischer of Sweet City, Ia.

The United States was represented in the talks by U. Alexis Johnson, Ambassador to Czechoslovakia, who is acting head of the United States delegation at Geneva, and the Chinese Communists by Wang Ping-nan, secretary general of the Chinese delegation.

Wilson said he still thinks the United States has a two or three year edge—though not in all fields.

Wilson said that while he did not think the technical gap is narrowing, the United States has developed a "better understanding of what the gap is."

There is, he said, a never appreciation of Russian "capacity to do things we do over here," as well as of the time needed to do them.

In reply to other questions, Wilson repeated his belief that another world war is not inevitable, that "it really isn't the answer" to settling difficulties with the Communists.

"Let's say you do have a third world war," he said. "Then when it's over are you going to have to move in and start rehabilitating the Russians and the Chinese? My God, what a job."

Asked about a statement by Donald A. Quarles, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Research, that the technical lead of the United States has "narrowed" in the last year, Wilson said yesterday:

"I don't know the gap is narrowing, exactly."

GUNBOATS HELP VIET NAM FORCE IN DELTA MOP-UP

Planes and Tanks Also Used in Clearing Reds From Villages Near Hanoi.

HANOI, Indochina, June 21 (AP)—French tanks, artillery, planes and gunboats helped Viet Namese infantrymen smash through a series of Vietminh-infested villages 18 miles northwest of Hanoi today in a mop-up.

A French spokesman said the raiders pushed through eight villages yesterday on the south banks of the Red River, between Hanoi and Son Tay. More villages were under fire today.

The villages are on what is known as Van Coc island, a several-mile long sliver of land formed by a split and eventual rejoinment of twin Red river channels.

Small French gunboats from midstream pumped machine-gun fire into the villages while planes and artillery pounded them. Then Viet Namese infantry units, supported by light tanks, smashed their way through the villages one by one.

Thirty-nine of the Communist-led rebels were captured and 33 dead counted, the French reported. There was no estimate of how many may have been killed or wounded by bombing, strafing, artillery and high velocity tank fire.

(The United Press said a train loaded with American supplies was blown up seven miles east of Hanoi by rebel mines.

(The U.P. also reported the 10,000-ton French cruisers Gloire and Montcalm arrived at Saigon, bringing the strength of French naval forces in Indochina to 16,000 men.)

Informed military sources reported 500 Vietminh war prisoners held by French Union forces near Saigon smashed out of their camp before dawn Saturday with the aid of savage attacks from surrounding guerrillas.

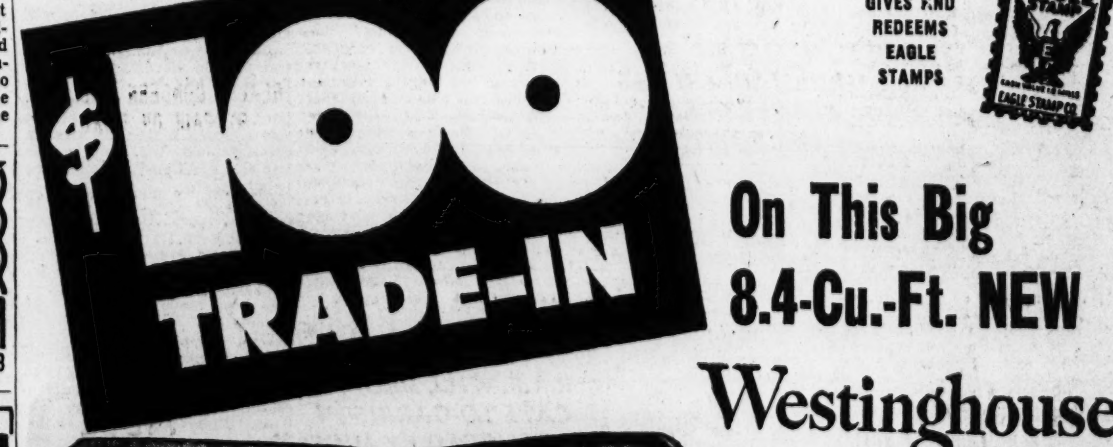

Authoritative sources said about 100 of the war prisoners were killed, wounded or recaptured but about 400 succeeded in getting free. The camp is at My Tho, about 30 miles southwest of Saigon.

B-26 bombers, flying below storm clouds, caught Vietminh supply convoys with bombs on highways the rebels are using to bring up ammunition and rocket launchers to the edge of the delta for a possible assault against Hanoi.

French pilots reported starting large fires and touching off a series of explosions, indicating hits on fuel and ammunition.

PIPELINE DELAY LAID PARTLY TO RAIN BY DEFENSE AT RACKET TRIAL

Official of Platte Co.
Called to Refute Testimony That Slowdown Caused Loss to Construction Firm.

Defense testimony that heavy rains contributed to delays in a pipeline construction project was introduced in United States District Court today at the trial of Lawrence Callanan, boss of the AFL Steamfitters' Union, and four other AFL leaders charged with violation of the federal anti-racketeering act.

First defense witness was George N. Beidleman, Overland Park, Kan., administrative assistant to the operating vice president of the Platte Pipeline Co. He brought with him, under subpoena duces tecum, records of the firm's pipeline construction job in Missouri in 1951.

Introduction of the records was intended to refute Government testimony that slowdowns by workers contributed in large part to a $100,000 loss suffered by the construction firm which built the pipeline for Platte. This experience was alleged to have influenced the contractor in his decision to pay off the five labor bosses now on trial.

Beidleman identified records showing that there were 20 days in June 1951 in which rain delayed or curtailed construction.

Records of foremen for the Platte company also indicated work of welders, belonging to Callanan's union, had been rated good to excellent.

The Government last week presented testimony by witnesses in support of charges that the five labor bosses interfered with interstate commerce by extorting $28,016 from the O. R. Burden Construction Co., Tulsa, Okla., in 1952 and 1953.

Morris A. Shenker, attorney for Callanan, outlined the defense in an opening statement Friday. He told the jury of 10 men and two women in United States District Judge Ruben M. Hulen's court that Callanan was guiltless of any of the accusations made against him.

Callanan, he said, would deny he ever negotiated an arrangement with Oscar R. Burden, president of the construction firm, for the $28,016 payoff or that he ever received any money from firms which the Government alleges were organized to cover up the payoff.

A Government witness, William G. Sariego of Tulsa, testified he organized a fake welding supply company, Callanan's direction, to bill the Burden firm for false material invoices.

Burden testified the payoff was made to obtain a promise of better production by craftsmen of the pipeline, laborers, holding engineers and teamsters' union, on a pipeline being constructed for the Sinclair Pipeline Co. through Missouri.

On trial with Callanan are Carl J. (Dutch) Bianchi, representing the Holding Engineers' Union; William Poster and R. M. Secor, Building Laborers, and L. A. Thompson, Teamsters. Bianchi, Poster and Thompson already are in federal custody, having been convicted earlier this year of labor racketeering. Each was sentenced to 10 years in prison. Callanan was an important figure in the Democratic party here until his forces were badly beaten in the August 1952 primary.

SURRENDERS ON BRIBERY AND PERJURY INDICTMENTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch. SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 21—Jesse Russell, public relations director of Russell & Axon, St. Louis consulting engineers, surrendered here today on two indictments charging him with bribery and perjury.

The indictments, returned by the Greent county circuit court grand jury, grew out of an investigation of a $170,700 sewer survey contract awarded to Russell & Axon in 1951. Springfield Street Commissioner Charles R. Brown, who awarded the contract, is under a two-year prison sentence following his conviction on a charge of accepting a $1000 bribe from the firm.

The investigation resulted in a change of the type of municipal government here to a council-city manager form. Russell is the son of George S. Russell, president of Russell & Axon. The company's offices are at 408 Olive street, St. Louis.

JUDGE RULES FOR MAJORITY IN THE COLLEGE CLUB

A five-year fight between two groups which formed the College Club of St. Louis over which is entitled to retain the club name and property, reached a decision today when Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood ruled in favor of the majority group.

The majority membership voted late in 1949 to withdraw from the American Association of University Women rather than submit to a bylaw forbidding member clubs to bar Negro women graduates of colleges recognized by the association. The minority group filed suit to retain the full affiliated name and club property at 5428 Delmar boulevard. Four teams competed for the state title.

Judge Kirkwood, who heard the case last month, held that the minority are no longer members of the club, "due to resignations and failure to pay dues"; that the vote to split was not a dissolution of the corporation, nor a departure from the purposes of the organization. His ruling also pointed out that the minority group wanted the court to "take proceedings in accordance with minority, rather than majority action."

The College Club of St. Louis was established as an independent organization shortly after 1900. It merged with the local chapter of the American Association of University Women in 1921.

15,000 YOUNGSTERS TO TAKE PART IN FISHING DERBY

A heavy mortality among fish in five city parks is expected from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. next Saturday, when about 15,000 boys and girls under 17 will take part in the annual Kids Fishing Derby.

TESTIFIES BEFORE ALDERMANIC UNIT ON BRIBE CHARGE

Neil T. Maloy Says He Went Over Matters He Related in Affidavit on Ben Oliver.

Neil T. Maloy, secretary-treasurer of National Lightning Protection Co., 200 South Jefferson avenue, testified for almost two hours today before the special aldermanic committee investigating Maloy's charge that Alderman Ben Oliver (Dem.), Sixth Ward, solicited a $500 bribe from him.

The bribe allegedly was to assure Oliver's support of a measure authorizing sale of city-owned property to Maloy's company.

Following his appearance before the committee, which is conducting the hearing behind closed doors at City Hall, Maloy told reporters he had gone over matters he related in his affidavit to city officials.

Charles R. Sackman, real estate dealer, was the second witness called before the committee. He also was questioned for nearly two hours.

Maloy and Sackman were the only two witnesses heard by the committee which recessed until tomorrow morning. Daily sessions will be held until all witnesses have been heard.

Alderman William K. Gardner, committee chairman, told reporters the two witnesses had been questioned at length concerning the charge against Oliver. He said they both told the same story previously related in their affidavits.

A transcript of testimony given at the hearing will accompany the committee's report, which will be made to the Board of Aldermen meeting as a committee of the whole.

Maloy, in his affidavit sworn in the office of City Counselor Samuel H. Liberman in April, related that he and Sackman were introduced to Oliver in the same story previously related in their affidavits.

At that meeting, Maloy said in his sworn statement, Oliver assured them of his support for the measure. The property is in Oliver's ward.

Three days later, Maloy's affidavit related, Oliver, Negro hotel valet and part-time minister, called on Maloy at his office and demanded the $500 to assure passage of the bill. The money was not paid and the measure died in committee.

The circuit court grand jury tomorrow will resume its inquiry into the charge. Several witnesses were called to testify before the jury last week.

SAFETY IS PURPOSE OF FINES, ST. LOUIS POLICE JUDGES SAY

Police Judges Robert G. Dowd, and Morris Rosenthal, speaking in a panel discussion yesterday on traffic violations, said their aim was to insure safe driving, not to help the city treasury by imposition of stiff fines.

Dowd and Rosenthal spoke on the "Operations Progress" program on Radio Station KWK. They discussed the changes they put into effect since taking office last July—uniform fines, separate sessions for traffic violators only, and a traffic violators' school.

Other speakers on the panel included Carroll J. Donohue, president, Bar Association of St. Louis, and Louis Antoine, chairman, street and highway traffic safety committee, St. Louis Safety Council.

Eisenhower View of McCarthy Encouraging, Flanders Says Vermonters Intends to Press His Move to Strip Wisconsin Senator of Power if His Ultimatum Is Ignored.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21—Senator Ralph E. Flanders (Rep., Vermont) said today that he has not been "too badly discouraged" by the Administration's attitude toward his resolution to strip Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, of his committee chairmanships.

Flanders said he had talked the matter over casually with top Eisenhower advisers on social occasions and that he considered President Eisenhower's views on his resolution, expressed at a recent press conference as "encouragement."

The resolution, now before the Senate Rules Committee, would strip McCarthy of his chairmanships unless the Wisconsin Senator purged himself of "contempt" of the Senate by answering questions about his finances. The questions were raised in 1952 by a Senate Rules subcommittee.

Flanders said he would give McCarthy until the middle of next month to purge himself of "contempt" charges. If McCarthy does not meet the ultimatum, Flanders told a press conference, he will resubmit his original resolution or will seek to bring the measure out of committee for full Senate debate.

Flanders said he does "not intend to let the matter drop" despite the fact that the resolution was considered shelved when it was referred to the Rules Committee. He said he has received "many expressions of support" from both Republican and Democratic Senators.

McCarthy's office said he was out of town and could not be reached for comment on the Flanders statement.

Flanders declined to give names of Senators who he said supported the resolution or to indicate extent of the support. But he said inroads had come from "colleagues on both sides of the aisle." Nor would he divulge the identities of Administration leaders with whom he talked the matter over.

Knowland's Role. He said the deadline for McCarthy's appearance before the rules committee was worked out with Republican Majority Leader William F. Knowland of California.

In a prepared statement, Flanders first set the deadline at July 15, but later he said this was not a firm date and that the middle of next month would better express his intent.

The resolution, introduced near the end of the Army-McCarthy hearings, was referred to the Rules Committee at Knowland's insistence. At that time, the majority leader criticized Flanders' action.

Referring to the 1952 subcommittee report, Flanders said "serious charges have been made" and McCarthy should have an opportunity to answer them.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem., Missouri), criticized McCarthy's loan transactions with the Appleton (Wis.) State Bank and his acceptance of a $10,000 fee from the Lustron Corp., which had financial dealings with the Government.

The subcommittee also asked whether McCarthy had made personal use of funds given to him to investigate Communism. Its report said the inquiry into McCarthy's finances had been seriously hampered by the Senator's consistent refusal to testify.

Flanders emphasized that he has no intention of dropping his efforts to strip McCarthy of the chairmanship of the Government Operations Committee and its Permanent Investigations Subcommittee if McCarthy refuses to testify.

"There has been speculation in the press during the past few days to the effect that my resolution is dead because of its referral to the Committee on Rules," his prepared statement said.

"I will not let this session of Congress end without providing the Senate with an opportunity to go clearly on record on this issue."

Flanders said he did not know exactly what form a new resolution would take if it proves necessary to resubmit the motion to the full Senate.

He said that he will not combine his resolution with a similar one introduced by Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem., New York). The Lehman resolution, Flanders said, was involved and might require lengthy hearings.

If the Senate adopts his resolution, McCarthy would be on notice that no Federal funds were to be used "to prepare files on other Senators," Flanders declared. He added that McCarthy "would have to get this money from outside sources."

Flanders said he referred to an incident during the Army-McCarthy hearings, in which it was reported that Roy Cohn, McCarthy's assistant, threatened to introduce derogatory information about Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Washington), a member of the McCarthy subcommittee, had criticized an anti-Communist plan prepared by Pvt. G. David Schine, another McCarthy aid.

Four suits filed today in circuit court asked for a total of $610,000 for property damage and personal injury allegedly resulting from the explosion and fire which demolished Wilson-Keith & Co., 4140 Chippewa street, and damaged the adjoining White Line Laundry.

Defendants in each instance are Wilson-Keith, pharmaceutical plant; Universal Match Corp., and Laclede Gas Co., Universal Match Corp. was conducting an experiment at Wilson-Keith, and Laclede Gas Co. furnished gas to the plant.

The largest suit, for $250,000 actual damage, against the three defendants, and for $125,000 punitive damages against Wilson-Keith and Universal Match, was by the White Line Laundry Co., White Linen Supply Co., and Better Rental Service Co., 4180 Chippewa street.

Charging "wanton negligence" and the presence of "extra hazardous explosive material" on the Wilson-Keith premises, the suit seeks a judgment for damage to property and loss of profit.

Mrs. Gertrude Jaude, owner of the White Line Laundry building, is suing the three defendants for $125,000 actual damage and Wilson-Keith and Universal Match Corp. for $50,000 punitive damage for harm caused to her building. Mrs. Jaude and her husband, August Jaude, sued the same defendants for $5000 actual and $5000 punitive judgment for damage to a building at the rear of their property.

Dale R. Glick, a salesman, 8901 West Lawn avenue, St. Louis county, who was making a business call at Wilson-Keith filed suit for $50,000 for personal injuries received in the explosion.

Fire Marshal Walter Bergman announced today he had reached a "general conclusion" as to the cause of the blast. Bergman said his findings would be reported at the coroner's inquest next Thursday in the deaths of six persons resulting from the explosion, on June 10.

The sixth death was that of Fred R. Layton, a chemist for Universal Match Corp., who died yesterday at St. Luke's Hospital. Layton was conducting a test for his company at Wilson-Keith, and it was reported he was trying to form pellets of material used in flame-throwers.

BEDELL SMITH HOME TO REPORT ON INDO PARLEY

Communist expansion in the Indochina area. They think a conference would be useful to that end. There seems little doubt that Eisenhower and Dulles will explore the idea with Churchill and Eden and seek their co-operation.

Until about two days ago authorities figured there was every reason to believe Britain would go along on some move toward creation of a southeast Asian alliance. That estimate was based on the official belief that Britain had decided the Geneva conference would fail to produce peace in Indochina so that alternatives to peace—in other words, collective action—should now be considered.

But on Friday and Saturday, France organized a new government which staked its existence on getting an Indochina peace in 30 days. Then the Reds at Geneva offered new concessions to keep the talks going and agreed to military discussions on ending the war in Laos and Cambodia as well as in Viet Nam.

The Geneva developments reportedly brought new hopes for peace to British leaders although Americans remained skeptical.

Setback to EDC.

Quite apart from the southeast Asian problem, the formation of the Mendes-France government provided no encouragement at all here to bolster waning American hopes for French approval of EDC.

Mendes-France was not regarded here as any friend of the EDC plan, under which Germany would be rearmed and its forces merged with those of France and four other states into a new international European defense force.

But on Saturday the new Premier named as his Minister of Defense Gen. Joseph-Pierre Koenig, a follower of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and an out-and-out foe of EDC.

Mendes-France Warned by Smith Against 'Sell-Out'

PARIS, June 21 (UP) — Premier Pierre Mendes-France, who is also filling the office of Foreign Minister, met today with Viet Namese Premier Ngo Dinh and Nguyen De, chief of Emperor Bao Dai's cabinet, to consider steps for a cease-fire in the Indochina war.

Mendes-France will hold his first meeting with his cabinet tomorrow morning to discuss the progress made in the series of hectic conferences since he was voted into office Friday.

Mendes-France originally was scheduled to leave for Geneva tonight, but after talking with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and United States Under Secretary of State Walter B. Smith he announced he had postponed the trip and didn't know when he would go.

Informed sources said Mendes-France got a warning from Smith against letting the one-month-from-today peace deadline that won National Assembly approval for the Premier lead to a "sell-out" in Indochina.

Mendes-France, who took office on Friday, will present his cabinet to the National Assembly Thursday.

MAN FOUND ALIVE IN SEALED FREIGHT CAR AFTER 8 DAYS

CASA GRANDE, Ariz., June 21 (AP)—A 27-year-old man locked in a sealed freight car for eight days was found alive but "dehydrated" when the car was opened here late yesterday.

He was identified by papers in his possession as Milford Alvin Fitzgerald of Seattle, Wash. He was described as in poor condition at a hospital in Florence, Ariz.

"He is too dehydrated from lack of food or drink," commented Dr. E. L. Heap, a hospital physician.

Officers of the Southern Pacific Railroad said Fitzgerald apparently had climbed into the car loaded with lumber in Washington state. The car then was sealed.

DUKE OF KENT HURT IN COLLISION ON WAY TO LONDON

SUNNINGDALE, England, June 21 (AP)—The Duke of Kent, seventh in line to the British throne, was flung from his station wagon in a highway crash yesterday and knocked unconscious.

Doctors said he suffered a severe concussion and cuts and bruises. A palace statement later said "his course since the injury has been satisfactory."

Queen Elizabeth II, the 18-year-old Duke's cousin, was told immediately of the accident and asked to be kept informed of his condition.

MOTHER CAUSED ARREST, HEIR IS QUOTED AS SAYING

Fiancee Testifies at Inquest Into His Death—No Charges Filed, Police Say.

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—The fiancée of Montgomery Ward Thorne testified at an inquest today into his death that the young heir told her his mother had had him arrested 18 months ago, but police records showed no arrest.

Police Capt. William Burke said Thorne was brought to the police station by his mother, Mrs. Marion Thorne, who said her son was "causing trouble," but no charges were filed.

Miss Maureen Ragen, 15 years old, said Thorne told her his mother had called him "a drunk and a dope addict."

Miss Ragen, who said she and Thorne planned to marry in December, testified that her fiancée had not used drugs and had not talked of suicide.

Earlier in the hearing police told of finding a makeshift hypodermic syringe, such as narcotics addicts use, in the room where Thorne, 20, was found dead Saturday.

More Evidence of Addiction. Detective Raymond J. Curran said he also found a marijuana cigarette, a sleeping pill and a teaspoon with a flame-blackened bowl in the room. Addicts heat their doses of narcotics in spoons.

The inquest room was packed with spectators after it became known that Thorne had revised his will recently to make his fiancée the principal beneficiary. Police said they learned he also had expressed doubt he would live to come into his $1,000,000 inheritance.

The hunt for drug-taking equipment began after Coroner Walter E. McCarron said there were four needle marks on Thorne's arms. McCarron ordered an analysis of vital organs which he said may take three weeks.

Will Changed Recently. Capt. Harry Penzin said that Jay Stough, Thorne's lawyer, told him that less than 10 days ago the young man changed his will to make Miss Ragen his heir and executor.

Penzin quoted Stough as saying Thorne, grandson of a former president of Montgomery Ward & Co., "was afraid he would never live to collect his inheritance. He asked me to assure that there would be a very thorough investigation... if he died."

Stough said Thorne would have begun receiving $1000 a month income from the estate of his father, Gordon C. Thorne, after his twenty-first birthday in October. The father's will provided the income would increase to $3000 a month at age 30 and the son would be allotted the principal of his inheritance at age 35, the lawyer said.

Miss Ragen, two whom young Thorne's new will left half of his estate, is the granddaughter of the late James M. Ragen, racing news service publisher who was shot down by gang assassins in 1946. She lives with her mother, Aileen, who is divorced from James M. Ragen Jr. The

SENATOR IVES SAYS SAN ANTONIO POOLS REOPEN UNDER NEW SEGREGATION LAW

HE WON'T RUN FOR DEWEY'S OFFICE

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Senator Irving M. Ives, yesterday bluntly spurned suggestions that he seek New York state's Republican gubernatorial nomination with the assertion that "I have no intentions of running." Asked about reports that he is Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's choice as a successor, Ives said that he would "insist" that the governor run for re-election. Ives's term does not expire until January 1959.

Dewey, reportedly reluctant to make the race for a fourth term, was due to confer today with Republican State Chairman Dean P. Taylor on the state political outlook.

Despite reports last week that the Governor had confided in friends that he intended to retire from politics this year, as late as last Friday he said that he was keeping an open mind on running but was considering "purely personal and family considerations."

Allied Mining Test off Sicily. NAPLES, Italy, June 21 (AP)—British, Italian and United States naval and air forces are taking part in a NATO mining exercise off Western Sicily, southern NATO headquarters announced yesterday. The exercise is one of a series of tests of Allied defenses in the Mediterranean.

new will derails that the rest of young Thorne's estate be divided among relatives, including his mother, Mrs. Marion Thorne. Mrs. Thorne, fourth wife of Gordon C. Thorne, was sole beneficiary under the son's original will, Stough said.

Young Thorne, a freshman at Fordham University, and Miss Ragen had been planning to be married in December.

Thorne's body was found when Miss Ragen asked the landlord to open the locked apartment. She had gone there, she told police, because young Thorne had failed to keep a swimming date Saturday.

JENKINS WOULD TAKE MCCARTHY AID IN ELECTION

Hearing Counsel, However, Says He Probably Won't Run for Senate in Tennessee.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—Ray H. Jenkins, special Senate counsel for the Army-McCarthy hearings, said yesterday that "as of this moment" he would let Senator McCarthy campaign for him if Jenkins runs for the Senate from Tennessee.

Jenkins interviewed on the NBC television program "Meet the Press," said he has received a "great deal of encouragement" to run for the Senate seat now held by Democratic Senator Estes Kefauver. He said the "probabilities are against it unless I change my mind."

When asked if he would permit McCarthy to campaign for him if he did decide to run, Jenkins replied:

"If I ran for the Senate I would welcome the help of all persons who I thought would be of aid and assistance to me in my campaign."

Pressed as to whether he would accept the Wisconsin's help specifically, he said:

"If I became a candidate in Tennessee, and Senator McCarthy magnanimously tendered his services in making political speeches for me, as of this moment I would accept his offer."

Others Shun Aid.

This is at variance with the position of some Republican leaders who have held McCarthy would be a liability rather than an asset to them in the coming fall campaign.

Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, chairman of the Senate G.O.P. policy committee, said recently that McCarthy would not "present the issues" to voters in Michigan and indicated he did not want the Wisconsin Republican to campaign for him.

McCarthy is not known to have offered to campaign for either Jenkins or Ferguson.

Jenkins said that Senator Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois, has "talked to me" about running for the Senate, but denied that Dirksen offered him either political or financial support. He added there was "some intimation" however, that Dirksen would speak in Tennessee for Jenkins should he become a candidate.

Jenkins said today he will decide within two weeks whether to become a candidate. He told reporters he plans to "talk with a couple of dozen friends" in whom he has confidence, "and take their advice about it."

Jenkins said he "definitely" did not ease up on McCarthy in cross-examination during the recently ended Army-McCarthy hearings.

"I assure you and the public that was the furthest thing from my thoughts," the gravel-voiced Tennessee lawyer said.

Jenkins added that he asked McCarthy on cross-examination "every direct question that I thought was in the range of his knowledge."

Jenkins insisted under questioning that he was "just as tough on Senator McCarthy as on Stevens."

FORMER FBI AGENT ASSIGNED TO ALABAMA MURDER INQUIRY

PHENIX CITY, Ala., June 21 (AP)—A former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent was assigned to the A. J. Patterson murder investigation while relatives of the Democratic nominee for Attorney General who was killed Friday night attended his funeral today.

Mr. Patterson, 63-year-old lawyer, was shot three times as he sat in his parked car in downtown Phenix City.

Meanwhile, national guardsmen and reinforced squads of highway patrolmen still patrolled the now quiet streets of this once roaring gambling town while civilian investigators checked every possible lead that might turn up the killer. More than 72 hours after Mr. Patterson was shot to death, shortly after leaving his office state and county officers said they still were without tangible evidence.

St. Garrett, the incumbent attorney general whose place Mr. Patterson was to take, assigned two of his assistants, Lee Barton and Maury Smith, to coordinate the murder investigation. Barton is a one time FBI agent, now an assistant attorney general.

SALVATION ARMY DEDICATES BUILDING FOR NO. 8 CORPS

The Salvation Army's No. 8 Corps building at Euclid avenue and Cupples place was dedicated yesterday. Col. Edwin Clayton of Chicago, second in command of the army's operations in the 11 central states, was principal speaker.

The new $90,000 center, which replaced the building at 4652 St. Louis avenue, consists of an auditorium, nursery, kitchen, dining room, recreational areas, class and club rooms. There is also a fenced-in playground at the rear of the building.

Roy W. Longstreet, member of the St. Louis Citizens Advisory Board, presided at the ceremony. Building funds for the new center were raised by a city and county drive conducted in 1948 and gifts from friends of the organization.

MEMBERS OF U.N.
NOTIFIED NOT TO

by the State Department of the United States. The campaign sought to prove that Guatemala was an outpost of Russia in South America, he said.

What Guatemala proposed was a U.N. observance commission to visit the nation and establish the truth of allegations made by both sides, he said.

Ex-Ambassador Assailed

American newspapers and other publications had participated in the campaign, he charged. He referred to the "sinister activities" of Richard Patterson, former American ambassador to Guatemala, without making clear his implications. He added, however, that Guatemala had not then or later made specific charges against unfriendly nations, particularly not against the United States.

It was evident to observers that Castillo-Arriola sought diplomatically to avoid direct accusations that the United States had incited the rebellion by anti-Communist exiles against the Guatemalan government.

In spite of repeated requests, he went on, the United States had refused to sell weapons to Guatemala although Washington had been repeatedly informed of the threat of invasion. He pointed out that while Guatemala was labeled Communist, the United States gave military and technical aid to Red Yugoslavia.

Castillo-Arriola denied his government was Communist, asserting it was of the "democratic left" and had held free elections for the first time in 50 years. He insisted the resolution opposing Communism passed at the recent Caracas conference over Guatemalan opposition, resulted in Latin American reaction that the United States approved only dictatorships due to the efforts of John Foster Dulles.

Eisenhower's Name Brought In

There was doubt, he added, that President Eisenhower had ratified State Department policy toward the invasion, recalling that Mr. Eisenhower had told the press the Guatemalan foreign minister that the United Fruit Co. situation "could not go on."

As to charges that Guatemala had obtained arms from the Soviet Union, he pointed out that his sovereign nation had the right to purchase weapons at its discretion. It had been refused arms by the United States; Honduras had declined to sign a non-aggression pact to protect one border, and Nicaragua, on the other border, had broken diplomatic relations.

He saw at the root of the trouble the conflict between his government and the United Fruit Co. If Guatemala outlawed all Communists, other pretexts would be found to justify opposition because of "existing international principles," he said.

He concluded his hour-long statement by asserting proof could be supplied that his cities had been bombed by planes of a nationality "we know more or less" originating from "neighboring countries" and Mexico. Some of them, he said, had been identified as American-manufactured.

Accused Nations Respond

Seated at the Council table with the Guatemalan ambassador, also by special invitation, were Dr. Tiburcio Carías Jr. of Honduras and Dr. Luis Menéndez Soto of Nicaragua. The representatives of both "neighboring countries" in brief statements expressed surprise at the implication by Castillo-Arriola that their governments were abetting the rebellion.

Promptly after the Honduran and Nicaraguan representatives had suggested sending the complaint by Guatemala to the Organization of American States for discussion, the Brazilian spokesman, joined by Colombia, made the formal proposal.

The Brazil-Colombia motion instructed Guatemala to make use of the Inter-American Peace Committee of the O.A.S., being "conscious of the availability of the inter-American machinery which can deal effectively with problems concerning the maintenance of peace and security in the Americas." This initial action was prescribed by the U. N. Charter, the resolution set forth.

Text of Resolution

The resolution states: "Having considered on an urgent basis the communication of the Government of Guatemala to the president of the Security Council, (the council) calls for the immediate termination of any action likely to cause bloodshed and requests from all members of the U.N. to abstain, in the spirit of the Charter, from giving assistance to any such action."

In rapid order, Sir Pierson Dixon of the United Kingdom, Leslie Knox Munro of New Zealand, and others expressed satisfaction with the resolution. The Guatemalan spokesman said it was Security Council responsibility to halt aggression and protect international peace. Guatemala was not being physically invaded by a specific foreign foe, he said, although Honduras was being used as a "springboard."

Therefore, there was no "local dispute" to take before the O.A.S., he said, but, instead, a "condition of violence which called for U.N. intervention as a threat to peace. Guatemala had 'notified' the O.A.S. of the invasion, but had not asked for help, he said.

Malik Enters Debate. Tsarapkin was quick to present the Russian view that Guatemala would be placed at the mercy of its South American opponents and the United States if it relied for decision on the O.A.S. Dr. Charles Malik of Lebanon, sensing a forthcoming Soviet veto, obtained from Hoppenot a promise he would resubmit his proposal as a new resolution if the Brazil-Colombia motion was killed.

It would be regrettable from the point of view of the U.N. and the authority and dignity of the Security Council, and also from the point of view of the small states which could be rapidly liquidated," Malik said, "if the meeting ended with no decision at all. The veto will be blamed," he added, "but the truth will be that the Security Council is impotent."

Tsarapkin rejoined the debate, observing acidly that it was clear the United States had inspired the invasion of "tiny Guatemala" because newspaper accounts disclosed that the American State Department and members of the United States Senate had expressed "delight" at the happening. The reason was that the public office holders were materially interested in the United Fruit Co., he said.

It was then that Lodge replied hotly to the Soviet spokesman, accusing the Soviet Union of exposing ambitions for a base in the Western Hemisphere. Lodge recalled that Guatemala had made no concrete charges against the United States. He said implications by Castillo-Arriola were based on statements in newspapers and by others who did not represent the United States Government.

Lodge pointed out that Tsarapkin, having indicated he would cast a veto, was trying to prevent the O.A.S. from solving the problem and "to bind up this wound in the world, and then report back to the Security Council."

Warning to Russians

Lodge said information available to the United States "strongly suggests that the situation does not involve aggression, but a revolt of Guatemalans against Guatemalans."

It was following the Russian veto of the Brazil-Colombia motion that Lodge warned angrily: "I say to the Soviet delegate: Stay out of the Western Hemisphere. Don't try to start your plans and conspiracies here."

After passage of France's resolution, Castillo-Arriola expressed satisfaction with it. He said he hoped it would result in the immediate closing of the Honduran border and the cessation of hostilities.

"If the invasion continues even though no more assistance is received by the rebels, will Guatemala be able to repel it," he was asked by reporters after adjournment.

"I don't know," he replied with a tired shrug. "We will have to see. I only regret that the Security Council did not consider the appointment of an observance commission to ascertain the facts."

TRUMAN 'VERY SATISFACTORY' AFTER OPERATION

though he sat up for short periods. His only visitor was Mrs. Truman.

The former President's daughter Margaret is in Mount Airy, Pa., where she will make her legitimate stage debut tonight in a summer theater production of "Autumn Crocus."

Mrs. Truman assured her by telephone that there was no need for her to travel to her father's bedside.

When Graham decided to send his patient to the hospital Saturday, he suggested that he call an ambulance. But Truman declined, saying he didn't want to cause "a lot of commotion."

"Let's just go in your car," he said.

Mrs. Truman and the former President's sister, Mrs. George Wallace, accompanied him. At the hospital, Truman declined a nurse's offer of a wheel chair and walked to the elevator that took him to his third-floor room.

Mrs. Truman remained at the hospital until 4:30 a.m. when Graham assured her that her husband "is doing just fine."

She and Mrs. Wallace then returned to the family home in Independence.

Graham said he had expected to find trouble with the gall bladder.

"What we found additionally was that drainage from the gangrenous gall bladder had seeped downward and caused a secondary infection of the appendix," he said. "So we also removed the appendix."

The hospital switchboard was jammed with calls most of yesterday from people throughout the nation inquiring about Truman's condition. All were told it was "satisfactory."

Graham said no regular hospital bulletins would be issued on Truman's condition, because none was needed.

Margaret Truman to Make Debut

In Play Tonight.

MOUNTAINHOME, Pa., June 21 (UP)—Margaret Truman, assured that her father was out of danger following surgery in a Kansas City hospital, was set today to make her stage debut in summer stock at the Pocono playhouse.

The daughter of former President Harry S. Truman will don stage glasses and play the part of a plain, unattractive young schoolteacher in the play, "Autumn Crocus," when it opens a nine-week straw hat tour tonight.

Dixie Lee, publicity director for the play, said Miss Truman was "very, very calm" when informed of her father's emergency operation.

LETTER FROM EISENHOWER GIVEN TO RHEE BY ENVOY

SEOUL, June 21 (AP)—A letter was reported delivered today by United States Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs from President Eisenhower to President Syngman Rhee of South Korea.

A reliable source said Briggs flew to Rhee's summer home at Chinhae. There was no indication of what the letter contained.

Diplomatic sources speculated the missive dealt with future moves in light of the failure of the Korean peace talks at Geneva or a potential United States-sponsored buildup of Korean military forces.

tions of two or three, all in varying degree.

Of those since died 745 had smoked as much as a pack or more of cigarettes daily for years. This was 319 more deaths than would be expected if these men had died at the same rate as the non-smokers.

Of these heavy cigarette smokers, 334 fell victim to heart attack—163 more than would be expected to have done so. And 161 of them died of cancer, 98 more than expected.

Lung Cancer

Figures on lung cancer are preliminary yet, said the report, but they indicate lung cancer deaths are at least three times more common among men who smoke cigarettes as among non-smokers, and may be nine times as high. For men who smoke a pack-a-day or better, lung cancer deaths are at least five times more common, and may possibly be 16 times as great.

Dr. Hammond and Dr. Horn said "it seems probable that nicotine is at least partly responsible for the findings" about increased risk of heart attacks. "Other than this, we would not hazard a guess at the present time."

They said no single bit of evidence alone proves the theory that smoking is a cause of death, but that many different bits of evidence support the idea.

Among other evidence they cited: An increase of 456 per cent in cigarette consumption since 1920; an increase in death rates from heart disease and cancer while the over-all death rate for the whole population has declined in the last three decades; evidence that cigarette smoking constricts blood vessels, kicks up pulse beat and blood pressure, and the fact that in Norway during World War II when cigarette smoking declined, deaths from heart disease also declined.

SQUALL UPSETS BOAT IN RACE

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., June 21 (AP)—A sudden squall, powered by 30-mile winds, spun into a fleet of 30 sailboats yesterday on southern Lake Michigan.

The winds capsize one yacht, snapped the masts of two others and forced four other boats to drop from the annual Chicago-Michigan City race and seek shelter. No injuries were reported.

Hearings Bared 'Salient' Facts, Mundt Believes

further, I read that Struve Hensel was the man who drafted the charges. I go back and I check my file and I find that we had been investigating Struve Hensel in a minor fashion since last December. I add two and two and I assume that is the motive. I put that in my charges. I frankly assumed that John Adams (Army counsel) and Struve Hensel were the moving parties here. Now it appears that they may have been acting under orders. I don't know."

Admission of Guessing.

"Senator McCarthy thus admitted that he was guessing when he made that charge against me. "It is difficult to imagine a more candid admission of reckless disregard of truth, fairness and common decency. Note the use of the word 'assume'—a scholarly word for 'guess.' Note the committee attended the executive session on May 17, 1954. Every member of this subcommittee, therefore, was present when Senator McCarthy admitted that he had no basis for his charges against me.

"On May 3, 1954, another executive session of this subcommittee was held. Senator McCarthy stated that he was willing to withdraw the charges against me so long as he could make such withdrawal in a manner which did not present him to the public as a 'dumb fool.' I explained my unwillingness to accept a withdrawal without a confession of error. That confession Senator McCarthy refused to make publicly.

"I then asked him why he ever made charges against me when he knew that he did not have any evidence to support such charges. He replied that he followed a maxim taught to him by an Indian, named 'Charlie,' with whom he had worked on a farm. Charlie, according to Senator McCarthy, urged the rule of conduct that if one was ever approached by another person in a not completely friendly fashion, one should start kicking at the other person as fast as possible below the belt until the other person was rendered helpless. Senator McCarthy stated that he followed that principle in this case.

McCarthy Refuses Apology.

"When the matter was presented in public hearing, my counsel insisted that any withdrawal of the charges would have to be coupled with an apology and that was refused by Senator McCarthy (record, P. 1582). "The hearing demonstrates conclusively that when Senator McCarthy made the charges against me he had no factual knowledge to support such charges and had acquired none since then. It further demonstrates that Senator McCarthy believes that as a Senator he has a license to make any sort of charges, vicious, malicious or otherwise, against an individual and then start an investigation to see whether any support can possibly be developed for such charges. Such procedure should be prohibited and prevented."

McCarthy left last weekend for a week's vacation at an unannounced spot and could not be reached for comment. Mundt made his statement about the "salient facts" as he announced postponement of what he termed "consultative talks" to explore the points of agreement among the four Republicans and three Democrats who conducted the hearings. Mundt had called a meeting of the group for this morning, but it proved inconvenient for several members to attend. He said he hoped they could get together late today, or tomorrow, and among other things sound out prospects for getting special counsel Ray H. Jenkins to help write a "verdict" in the inquiry. Jenkins told reporters he is ready to agree to take on the job.

"I will be available to do anything directed by the committee as long as it is necessary," he said. "I'm going to see the job through."

"Fistful" of Affidavits. Mundt said he has "a whole fistful" of affidavits, including one from Hensel, that the writers want introduced in the official record of the hearings. He said he would submit them to the subcommittee at its next voting meeting.

Mundt said the "fistful" of affidavits includes one from Pvt. G. David Schine, former McCarthy aide who was drafted into the Army, and a half-dozen or so. He said, however, that he had not received a statement from former White House counsel Clark M. Clifford, who advised Secretary of the Army Robert S. Stevens briefly on tactics to be used with McCarthy. Democratic members of the subcommittee sought during the hearings to subpoena Clifford, an aid to former President Truman, but the Republicans voted it down 4 to 3. The Democrats later announced that Clifford would be called to testify if called, but he was not called.

Harmony was noticeably absent following the first executive session Friday at which Mundt announced the subcommittee had agreed informally "to try to agree" for unanimity on at least some findings.

Right afterward Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas, senior Democrat and spokesman for his minority party colleagues, publicly demanded a "housecleaning" among staff members before the group undertakes any new investigations. Senator McCarthy, who as regular subcommittee chairman appointed its staff, retorted that the Democratic demand was "clever, dishonest and extremely dangerous to the country."

Mundt announced also that he is calling on the special staff for a quick report on costs of the long-drawn inquiry. The subcommittee already has voted to ask the Senate to reimburse its $214,000 operating fund of 1954 for whatever it cost to explore the McCarthy-Army case.

Mundt said preliminary reports indicate "the total cost may be well below what we had anticipated." He refused to give any figures.

One subcommittee staff aid, declining to be quoted by name, said the total cost might run "in the neighborhood of $22,000."

That would include payment to the five special staff members at a rate of about $1000 a month each, and the cost of subpoenaing witnesses and paying for the stenographic recording of the proceedings. Not included would be the salaries of the many participants already on other payrolls.

Jenkins's willingness to continue on the job may give some clue to his political plans. Some friends have been urging him to run for the Republican nomination for the seat now held by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee.

Potter Wants Staff Checkup. Senator Potter, who expressed a strong view about lying and possible perjury charges after the hearings ended last Thursday, insisted further on an ABC television program last night that new subcommittee hearings should be held up "until our staff problem has been settled."

Potter said that in deciding

The McCarthy-Army controversy would act "according to my own conscience" regardless of party affiliations.

Potter's vote could be the decisive one in determining whether Roy M. Cohn, 27-year-old subcommittee chief counsel, and Francis P. Carr, subcommittee chief of staff and other subcommittee aides involved in the controversy should continue.

Potter said that whether McCarthy should continue as chairman is something for the Senate to decide. And he would be "extremely hesitant to suggest," he said, that Secretary Stevens, a presidential appointee, should resign.

Under the theory that they (the principals) are responsible for actions of their subordinates, however, he said that "if they had the knowledge that perjury was being committed by persons under their jurisdiction, I think that they would suffer by that knowledge in not presenting the true facts to the American people."

And, he added, they "so should suffer."

Memoirs Questioned.

In answer to a question, he said "there are many, many people who share the view" expressed in questioning by Army Special Counsel Joseph N. Welch that memoranda submitted by the McCarthy staff were not genuine, although he said no proof was presented to show that they were false.

Potter declined to say whether or not he was among those sharing the view.

"If the Justice Department wants to go behind the testimony that has been given," he said, "I assume that they will do so."

McCarthy, Carr, Cohn and Mrs. Driscoll, McCarthy's personal secretary, attested to the genuineness of the various memoranda.

Potter also challenged McCarthy's contention that as head of an investigating subcommittee he is entitled to receive classified documents from employees of the Executive branch.

Mundt has said McCarthy now is free to go ahead with regular subcommittee investigations.

Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.), Washington, told a reporter "it is inconceivable" that the subcommittee, of which he is a member, would tackle any new investigations before disposing of charges against its staff. But he said the code be done "separate and apart" from the findings on the McCarthy-Army dispute.

Cohn said last night in an interview following a television appearance on the Walter Winchell program on ABC in New York that he expected some members of the committee staff to resign to accept "attractive business offers."

"I have no plans to resign," Cohn said. "But some members of the staff have received attractive business offers and I expect some of them will resign."

Cohn added that he would not fight dismissal, if a majority of the committee votes that he should not remain on the staff.

During the broadcast Cohn said, "The great support of the American people has been enough to make me want to stay on. But I will continue fighting Communism whether on or off the committee."

Cohn asserted that no one on the staff has "ever been denied any type of security clearance by anyone."

Democrats had charged that two members of the subcommittee staff have never been given clearance by the Defense Department although their requests had been made in March and in April 1953.

Cohn said also the committee had received "a great deal of information about Communists placed on supposedly respectable newspapers." (The United Press quoted Cohn as giving former Communist Louis Budenz as the source of much of this information.)

When questioned after the program, Cohn said one result of the hearing was to "show the public how slanted the news coverage of the hearings was."

He also said the chief result of the hearings had been to "stop the committee's efforts to expose Communist infiltration."

FAMILY ON TRIP UNWARE BOY MAY NEED RABIES SHOT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 21 (AP)—A Missouri family is on a vacation trip to Florida, unaware that a member is in danger of rabies infection.

Police in southeastern states have been alerted to stop Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zellner and tell them that their son, Russell, 11 years old, should take anti-rabies serum immediately.

The boy was bitten by a skunk at their home in Blue Springs Friday. The family started to Florida early Saturday. Later the highway patrol said the skunk died with symptoms of rabies.

HEARING OVER SHREWSBURY BUS LINE SET FOR JULY 1

JEFFERSON CITY, June 21—An application by St. Louis Public Service Co. for authority to abandon service on the McKendrick-Shrewsbury bus line will be heard here by the Missouri Public Service Commission on July 1.

The transit company, which was required by the commission to establish the line, over the company's objection, has contended the line is causing losses which constitute a burden on the entire transit system.

The City of Shrewsbury has intervened in opposition to the proposed abandonment of service. The city raised the contention the company's rate of return should be considered on the basis of the overall system and not for one particular line, and that no area should be deprived of transportation service because a specific line is losing money.

ARBENZ INVOKES MARTIAL LAW AS SHOWDOWN NEARS

ported the capture of three towns near the Honduran border—Asquipulas, Jocotan and Quezatepeque. It also said insurgent forces had cut the vital railroad from Puerto Barrios to Guatemala City near a town called Morales.

(At the United Nations, Guatemalan representatives confirmed the fall of Morales and Asquipulas. They said the invaders also had taken the town of Bananera. All three were described as small towns, close together, about 10 miles inside Guatemala.)

A spokesman for Col. Carlos Castillo Armas, leader of the "liberation army," said here the drive toward the Pan-American highway was aimed at Jutiapa, a town of 5000, some 45 miles south of Guatemala City. It lies 20 miles north of the El Salvador border.

Other rebel units also were reported heading toward Asuncion Mita, a town of 3000, 13 miles northeast of Jutiapa.

Small Uprisings Reported.

Reporting the dropping of supplies to insurgents inside Guatemala, the spokesman said small-scale uprisings had occurred at Totonicapán, Retalhuleu and Huehuetenango. These towns range in population from 6000 to 9500. They are north and west of Guatemala City, nearer the Mexican border.

Rebel headquarters claimed Government soldiers "are deserting to our side" and declared the Arbenz Government had no confidence in its army. Spokesmen gave no estimate on the number of deserters, however.

In a statement, the headquarters said the "national liberation movement" has taken a position inside the territory of Guatemala without the help or co-operation of any other country or foreign entity. A spokesman said the rebel force consisted of 5000 men, all Guatemalans.

The Arbenz Government has charged Castillo received aid from Nicaragua. It also has asserted the rebel force is composed of adventurers from other Central American nations, in addition to Guatemalan exiles.

Anti-U.S. Incidents Elsewhere.

The Guatemalan fighting sparked a wave of anti-United States demonstrations in other Latin American nations.

In Havana, police reported a group of Cuban Communists attacked the office of the United Press, throwing stones and other objects at the news agency quarters. Windows were broken but no one was injured. Police said they made some arrests.

Chilean students shouting pro-Guatemalan slogans burned the United States flag in downtown Santiago Saturday night. The demonstrators represented seven political parties, ranging from left-wing Socialists to conservative Social Christians.

In Buenos Aires, the pro Government newspaper Critica said Guatemala is "surrounded by enemies" giving help to "exiled Guatemalan revolutionaries." In the first Argentine newspaper comment on the uprising, Critica said the Guatemalan government "clashed with the powerful interests of the United Fruit Co. and its subsidiaries, while fighting for national sovereignty."

U.S. Family Reported Jailed Several Hours in Guatemala.

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—The Journal-American said today it learned in a long-distance telephone conversation with a spokesman at the United States Embassy in Guatemala City that an American family of four was held in jail for several hours by Guatemalan "loyalists."

The spokesman said the family, including two young children, was released early today after Ambassador John E. Puerifoy intervened with Foreign Minister Guillermo Toriello. The family, it was reported, was seized by an armed band of civilians for violating curfew as they walked home from a friend's house where they had dined. Their names were withheld.

THREE JET BOMBERS BEGIN NON-STOP FLIGHT TO JAPAN

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., June 21 (UP)—Three Air Force B-47 stratojet bombers took off today on a 6700-mile flight to Japan, the longest point-to-point nonstop flight ever attempted by jets.

The group, led by Maj. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney Jr., commander of the Fifteenth Air Force, was expected to reach Yokota Air Force Base near Tokyo, in 15 to 16 hours.

The six-engine stratojets, all belonging to the Twenty-second Bombardment Wing, will be refueled by planes of the Twenty-second Air Refueling Squadron strung out along the way at Pacific bases, a spokesman said.

U.S. ACCEPTS BRITISH OFFER OF CEMETERY FOR WAR DEAD

LONDON, June 21 (AP)—The United States today formally accepted a British offer of a cemetery for American war dead in England.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and American Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich exchanged notes at a Foreign Office ceremony making available to the United States a military cemetery at Madingley, near Cambridge.

Cost of upkeep will be an American responsibility.

22 MAU MAU TERRORISTS HANGED AT NAIROBI PRISON

NAIROBI, Kenya, June 21 (UP)—Government officials announced today that 22 Mau Mau terrorists were hanged last week at Nairobi prison.

Included, the announcement said, were the leader of a Mau Mau gang, six terrorists convicted of murders, six found in illegal possession of firearms and ammunition, three convicted of administering the obscene oaths of the secret society and six who had consorted with armed persons.

SUITCASE AND $15,032 STOLEN, RECOVERED QUICKLY

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—A suitcase containing $15,032 in bonds and checks, his life's savings, vanished last night when the owner, a retired railroad section hand, put it down for a moment to get a drink of fruit juice at a stand in the North Western station.

Police recovered it for Peder Berentson, 72 years old, by the process of touring the neighborhood west of the loop and stopping everyone carrying such a suitcase. The fourth man they stopped, Hugh Binns, 54, had the right bag. Binns has been charged with grand larceny.

PRIVATE TALKS HELD IN GENEVA ON ASIAN TRUCE

Molotov, Eden and Smith Gone—Formal Session on Indochina to Be Held Tomorrow.

GENEVA, June 21 (AP)—Indochina conference delegates worked in private meetings today to arrange military negotiations for a cease-fire in Laos and Cambodia. The formal nine-nation sessions were recessed until tomorrow.

Red China's Premier-Foreign Minister Chou En-lai was the only top conference figure still in Geneva. United States Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov all flew home over the weekend.

Chou was reported ready to follow their example later this week.

French Premier-Foreign Minister Pierre Mendes-France delayed his arrival at the conference to actively push his campaign for peace in Indochina. He promised the French National Assembly he would resign unless he got an armistice by July 20.

French delegation sources expected their new chief here sometime later this week.

Cambodian Sees Chou. Before their departure, Eden, Molotov and Smith agreed with the other conference delegates that separate, direct military negotiations would be held on Laos and Cambodia. They already are underway for Viet Nam.

Cambodian Foreign Minister Tep Phann opened discussions with Chou yesterday but there was no immediate contact between the representatives of Laos and Cambodia and those of the Communist-led Vietminh.

A main question to be decided was who would take part in the direct talks and whether they would be held in Geneva or in Indochina.

The two Indochinese kingdoms have made it clear they will not negotiate with representatives of the Communist "resistance governments," which they and the French contend are "phantoms" with no popular support.

Reports Due by July 10. The Laotians and Cambodians want to deal only with the Vietminh, charging it is their forces who have invaded their territory.

Saturday's agreement called for the military representatives to report on the cease-fire talks for all their Indochina states within three weeks, or by July 10.

At the full conference session tomorrow the delegates will resume their debate on cease-fire supervision.

The Reds changed their position somewhat on this late last week, but there was no immediate Western reaction to their new suggestions. Originally the Communists pressed for a four-nation supervisory commission: Poland, Czechoslovakia, India and Pakistan.

The West rejected this, proposing instead a five-nation Asian group to include India, Pakistan, Burma, Indonesia and Ceylon.

Molotov advanced the new Communist proposal, saying he would be willing to add Indonesia to make a five-nation body, or alternatively would agree to a three-member commission made up of Poland, India and Indonesia.

The conference has numerous other problems to consider while the military talks are in progress.

These include the general political questions on Indochina's future, especially election machinery to be set up and the method of guaranteeing any settlement agreed upon.

U.S. CHIDED ON COLONIALISM BY MANCHESTER GUARDIAN

LONDON, June 21 (UP)—The Manchester Guardian, discussing the developments in Guatemala, commented today:

"And to think that the State Department—so we are told—is getting ready to lecture Sir Winston Churchill on the evils of British colonialism."

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press.

Justice Takes Its Shove.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—Asked whether he wished to file charges against the man who knifed him, the victim replied, "Let justice take its course."

An hour later a second man was at the hospital for treatment of a head laceration, asked whether he knew his attacker, he promptly named the first man.

"Justice has taken its course," said the policeman, "but I think it got a shove." No charges were filed.

The Ughs Have It.

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Fifty California reservation Indians met here to plan how to fight legislation in Congress that would take them from under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

At one point, Chairman Erin Forrest, of the XL reservation in northeastern California, submitted a detail to the group and asked, with a smile: "all those in favor, say ugh."

Squirrel Turns.

INDIANAPOLIS—It took two policemen flailing heartily with nightsticks to dispatch a belligerent squirrel here.

Within 400 miles TCP brings back lost engine power!

Blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, TCP* overcomes engine deposits in combustion chambers and on spark plugs. Gives up to 15% more power, up to 2½ times longer spark plug life

Acts so fast you'll feel your engine has had a tune-up before you've finished your second tankful

You can be almost certain that your engine has a reserve of hidden power which has gone untouched for thousands of miles—power you haven't enjoyed since your car was first broken in.

It is power held back by lead and carbon deposits—power that can now be put to work!

Where deposits accumulate

These power-wasting deposits build up in two sensitive areas: In combustion chambers, where they become red hot and pre-fire fuel before the piston is in its correct firing position; on spark plugs, where they short-circuit the electrical charge, and cause misfiring.

These power thieves, pre-ignition and misfiring, are the major cause of power loss in today's engines. They are at their worst when you need performance most—for accelerating or climbing a hill.

Hidden power unleashed

The power held in by deposits is released when Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP additive gets to work. This Shell-discovered additive "fireproofs" deposits in combustion chambers to stop pre-ignition. It makes spark plug deposits non-conductive, prevents short-circuiting and misfiring.

Within 400 miles

So swift is the corrective effect of Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP, that you'll feel your engine has had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful. But because engine deposits constantly accumulate, it's important to continue using Shell Premium with TCP additive to maintain the benefits you've gained.

Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP is the greatest gasoline development since the discovery of tetraethyl lead. It is available at all Shell Dealer Stations.

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

SEARCH RESUMED FOR 'BIG HEARTED' KENTUCKY SHERIFF

WARSAW, Ky., June 21 (AP)—Possemen were called out early today to resume a seemingly hopeless search for Hubbard Ferguson, Gallatin county's "big hearted" sheriff.

The 63-year-old sheriff has been missing since Friday amid circumstances that led fellow officers to believe he was a victim of foul play. Yet, Ferguson has no known enemies, according to those who knew him best. "To tell you the truth, Hub is known as a little too easy on law violators," Police Chief John Closer said. "He is a big-hearted man and just hates to arrest anybody for minor offenses." The sheriff's automobile was found abandoned Saturday morning on a country road near his farm. It had been run up against an embankment on the left side of the road, so close the door on that side would not open. A pistol usually kept in the car was missing. The car keys lay on the front seat. The sheriff's hat was found in weeds over a fence.

HARD-COAL MINE PICKETS DEFY LEWIS WORK ORDER

TAMAQUA, Pa., June 21 (AP)—Roving bands of pickets from Tamaqua United Mine Workers local, continuing to defy back-to-work orders from UMW President John L. Lewis, again today blocked resumption of anthracite mining in Panther creek valley.

An auto caravan swirled through the valley in the early morning, dropping a few pickets at each scheduled working place. Other miners made no efforts to pass the pickets to go to work. Checks throughout the remainder of the eastern Pennsylvania hard coal fields, where the Tamaqua men had sought to enlist support, showed mines working normally and no pickets at the pits. Mines in the valley have been shut down since May 3, when Lehigh Navigation Coal Co. suspended operations because of what it termed "excessive losses."

G.O.P. LEADERS AGREE ON NEW FARM MEASURE

They Predict Congress Will Pass Bill That Eisenhower Can Sign—Flexible Supports.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Senate and House Republican leaders predicted today that Congress would pass a farm bill which President Eisenhower could sign.

Senator William Knowland of California and Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana gave no details as they emerged from a weekly conference with the President, but Halleck said he hoped the bill would at least "make a start" on the gradual, flexible system of farm price supports asked by the Administration.

The House Agriculture committee has voted to extend for another year the present high-level rigid supports on basic crops—a program Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said he would ask the President to veto. Mr. Eisenhower has not said what course he would take if rigid supports were approved.

Method at Issue. Halleck said the major question now is whether the arm of lower, flexible levels, should be achieved by administrative discretion or by congressional action.

Knowland and Halleck renewed their often-made prediction that Congress would adjourn by July 31, and said there are "absolutely" no plans for a special session barring an international emergency.

Joining in the White House conference today was Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., who Halleck said made a "strong plea" for passage of pending legislation to control Communists. Eleven separate bills making up that program are pending in the House Judiciary Committee. The congressional leaders said they promised their support.

Reciprocal Trade.

In an earlier interview, Knowland said he is confident the Senate would beat down Democratic efforts to revise the Administration's reciprocal trade and tax revision bills, but conceded "I may be unduly optimistic."

Neither the Senate nor the House planned any business today. Both arranged brief sessions to pay respects to two members of Congress who died over the weekend—Senator Lester Hunt (Dem.), Wyoming, and delegate Joseph Farrington (Rep.), Hawaii.

Hunt was found in his office Saturday morning with a bullet wound in his head, and died several hours later. The coroner pronounced it suicide. Hunt had announced he would not be candidate for re-election for reasons of ill health.

On Saturday night, Farrington, Hawaii's non-voting delegate in the House, was found dead in his office. Death was attributed to a heart ailment.

Funeral Service. Services for Hunt were conducted today at Washington's Trinity Episcopal church, of which he was a member.

The House has no major legislation on the calendar for action this week, although it may begin debate on a foreign aid authorization bill if the Foreign Affairs Committee completes its consideration in time. President Eisenhower has asked for a 3½ billion dollar program for the coming year.

The Senate plans to open debate tomorrow on a one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act, which gives the President authority to reduce tariffs in exchange for similar concessions from other nations.

GIRL GORED BY BUFFALO AT SAN FRANCISCO PARK

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21 (UP)—Alice Lorch, 9 years old, suffered a deep cut on her left temple yesterday when a bison gored her in the Golden Gate Park buffalo pen.

The accident took place when the girl rushed up to the fence to give the bison some peanuts. Witnesses said the bison drove his horns through the wire fence and one of them struck her on the side of the head. She was treated at Park Emergency Hospital and released.

HOUSING SET ASIDE AT POOL FOR PREACHERS TO SWIM

CUSHING, Okla., June 21 (UP)—Preachers were expected to pour into the municipal swimming pool here today to mark the inauguration of the "preacher's hour." The city council set aside one hour each morning for ministers at the pool to enable the clergymen to take a dip without being criticized for appearing in bathing suits.

DROWNS IN MERAMEC EAST OF PACIFIC

Richard R. Van Esler Had Returned Two Weeks Ago
From Service in Korea.

Richard R. Van Esler, 2023A
East Grand avenue, drowned in the Meramec river just east of Pacific yesterday when wading with three companions.

Van Esler, who returned home two weeks ago after 14 months of Army service in Korea, could not swim. He was 26 years old.
His companions said he was trying to get to a log when he stepped into water about 15 feet deep, about 50 feet from the bank.

He did not call for help and was thought to be playing when he went under. His body was recovered with hooks two and a half hours later.

The companions were William English, 3840 South First street, and Joseph Rulo and Elizabeth Hawks, both of 3700 South First street.

Van Esler was employed at Moloney Electric Co. before en-

Body of Drowning Victim Recovered at Alton Dam.

The body of Airman First Class William B. Creed, who drowned in a boating accident in the Mississippi river near Batchtown, Ill., April 21, 1953, was recovered from the river yesterday at the Alton dam, about 20 miles below the scene of the accident.

Creed, stationed at Scott Air Force Base, and a fellow airman, Staff Sgt. James Lester, were thrown into the water when their motor boat capsized. Both started to swim 150 yards to the Illinois shore, but Creed sank after assuring Lester he was "fine and dandy." Lester reported.

The body was sent to Fulton, Mo., Creed's former home, for burial. Creed was 25 years old and the son of O. L. Creed.

250,000 See Moscow Air Show; No New Type Planes Displayed

Soviet Flyers Perform Intricate Acrobatics to Music of 500-Piece Band—Top Kremlin Men in Reviewing Stand.

MOSCOW, June 21 (AP)—The Soviet air force put on a giant air show yesterday but the 687 planes that took part included no new types. Even the four-jet intercontinental bomber flown over Red Square on May day was absent from the display.

However, a crowd of 250,000, headed by Premier Georgi Malen-kov, Communist party secretary Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders, saw a thrilling performance of skillful flying over Moscow's Tushino field.
The aircraft ranged from four small radio-controlled gliders to 162 two-jet bombers.

The show, staged in observance of the Soviet union's annual air force day, proved once more that Russians are past masters in ballet: The planes performed acrobatics at slow and high speeds and intricate routines almost like a classic dance in absolute time to music from a 500-man band drawn up on front of the reviewing stand on the porch of the Chkalov Air Club.

Premier Malenkov was the dominant figure in that assembly. He arrived in a huge black Zis with white walled tires, walked up a palm-plant-bordered staircase, bareheaded, and in a light gray suit. Marshal Nikolai Bulgankin, the defense minister, followed. Then came Khrushchev and other Presidium members. After the show the leaders descended in the same order but the men; Malenkov, Khrushchev, Bulgankin, A. I. Mikoyan and Lazar Kaganovich all piled into one automobile and drove off together.

Moscow radio reports monitored in London claimed the Russians demonstrated in the air show the world's first wingflapping glider. It flies, the report said, by flapping its wings like a bird and was invented by a Ukrainian, Alexander Y. Monskov.

Describing a fly-past in Moscow the radio announcer said:
"In the sky appears, towed by an airplane, a graceful glider with long, slim wings. The glider breaks the tow and we see quite clearly that the glider begins to flap its wings like a sea bird. The wind stream raises the glider's wings, gathering air in a special compressor.
The gathered energy returns the wing to its original position. The wind stream not only supports the glider but transmits its en-

HUNDREDS MORE EVACUATED FROM FLOOD AREAS IN IOWA

DES MOINES, June 21 (AP)— Iowa's flood peril extended over a widened area today as raging waters claimed one life and caused hundreds of fresh evacuations as additional cities were hit.

A flash flood in Des Moines drove many families from their homes and closed transconti-ental Route U.S. 6. It was reopened today.

Most of northern Iowa was polka-dotted with small lakes created by torrential rains. Crop experts said damage would run into millions in the flooded rich bottomlands. Highway and rail traffic was interrupted at many points. One person was reported drowned.

Alfred Anderson, 18-year-old farm youth, disappeared while attempting to swim his horse across the raging Iowa river to reach some stranded cattle.

GUARD IS KILLED IN PRISON BREAK ATTEMPT, 3 HURT

Six Convicts in Kansas Hold Visitors as Hostages, Try to Shoot Way to Freedom.

LANSING, Kan., June 21 (AP)—Shielding themselves with six terrified prison visitors, six convicts tried to force their way out of the Kansas State Prison yesterday.

A guard was killed and one of the hostages and two of the convicts were wounded before the group surrendered.

The convicts were armed with three crude pistols and six knives, all made within the prison walls.

The six men entered the visitors' room where about 25 visitors were talking with prisoners, seized the hostages, including two children, and hustled them to the Administration Building.

Fred Konaga, 58 years old, an unarmed guard supervisor with 25 years of service, met the group at the door and was shot to death.

Inside a vestibule, the convicts were stopped by two gates. They yelled for Gatekeeper Andy Hollinshead to open the gates, and when he refused, they fired at him.

Warden Charles Edmondson got a rifle and stepped into the corridor as armed guards approached the convicts from the rear.

The convicts started shooting, but surrendered when the guards opened fire.

Mrs. Frankie Scroggins, 26, Kansas City, was wounded in the shoulder. The other hostages were Miss Marjorie Capelhart, 28, and her 2-year-old niece, Janet Manes, Topeka, Kan.; Mrs. Martha Cupp, 20, Olathe, Kan.; Charles Wheeler, 55, and James Anthony Wheeler, 11, of Kansas City, Kan.

The convicts' 22-caliber pistols were made from wood and pieces of pipe. The ammunition had been smuggled in to them.

Warden Edmondson said the six convicts would be charged with first-degree murder in Kenaga's death.

The total compares with President Eisenhower's budget recommendations of $465,160,000. Of the total $436,379,100 for planning, construction and operation of flood control and rivers and harbors projects by army engineers. The amount for construction is $300,367,600.

The compromise bill now goes to both the House and the Senate for consideration.

STRIKE IN COPPER MINES TO BE VOTED ON BY UNION

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—A conference of the Independent Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers authorized a strike vote in the non-ferrous metals industry, the union announced today.

The announcement said the executive board of the union was authorized to take the strike vote after delegates reported that six weeks of bargaining with three of the industry's "big four" produced no wage or contract counter-offers from employers.

It listed the three as Anaconda Copper Mining Co., Kennecott Copper Co. and American Smelting and Refining Co. It said bargaining was to begin "shortly" with Phelps-Dodge Copper Corp. where contracts expire a month later than in other companies.

The Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union was ousted from the CIO on grounds it was too left-wing.

Threat of Smear Involving Member of Family Said to Have Contributed to Hunt's Suicide

Many Senators Becoming Deeply Concerned Over Practice—Conviction Growing McCarthy Uses Funds to Compile Dossiers on Other Members.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1954, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)
WASHINGTON, June 21.

BOTH Republican and Democratic Senators are deeply concerned over the extent to which smear politics has been carried. Whether anything will be done about it in the next six weeks before the final session of the Eighty-third Congress ends, is difficult to predict. The odds are against any affirmative action.

But it is becoming more and more evident to the members of a body that jealously guards the rights and privileges of both the individual and the institution that something new and profoundly disturbing has been added. The conviction is spreading that Senator Joseph McCarthy, as chairman of the Senate Committee on Government Operations and its investigating subcommittee is using funds voted by the Senate to investigate other Senators. Nothing like that has ever happened before.

It came out in McCarthy's hint that he was considering charges to be made against an unidentified Democratic Senator. In the suicide of Senator Lester Hunt (Dem.), Wyoming, his friends believe that the threat of a smear contributed to a shocking tragedy. Many Senators are beginning to ask how far the politics of the smear will go before the Senate takes corrective action.

Incident Involving Hunt. Some months ago a member of Hunt's family was involved in a police action that caused great anguish to Senator and Mrs. Hunt. This personal tragedy, according to Hunt's friends in the Senate, was promptly exploited by certain of the opposition. These friends say that Senator Herman Welker (Rep.), Idaho, let Hunt know that the smear was about the incident would find their way into every mail box in Wyoming if Hunt should run for re-election this fall.

Shortly afterward, Hunt announced that he would not seek a second term. A mild mannered, friendly man, he was widely known throughout Wyoming and his re-election was considered a virtual certainty. By eliminating him, the Republicans, or more accurately the McCarthy-Welker faction of the party, could feel they had enhanced the chances for picking up another seat in a Senate almost evenly divided.

There were other reasons why Senator Hunt might have ended his life. He had been under treatment at Bethesda Naval Hospital for a condition that might have been malignant, although there is nothing to substantiate this report. He is known to have brooded deeply over the family tragedy and to have spoken to a few intimates of the unfeeling way in which it was hinted that this would be exploited if he continued his career.

If this was an isolated episode, it might pass without comment. But so many similar instances are known in Washington as to suggest that this may become a common and accepted pattern of political life if it is not checked. From time to time in the Senate's long history when sporadic personal bitterness has flared up personal charges have been hurled back and forth.

Other Instances. When Huey Long of Louisiana was challenging the Democratic leadership in 1935 shortly before his assassination, he engaged in a vitriolic exchange with the then majority leader, Senator Joseph Robinson of Arkansas. Robinson made a reference to Long's alleged drinking habits, whereupon the "Kingfish" reacted in an incident involving the Senate leader which had been common gossip in Washington for some time. But such conduct on the Senate floor was considered then to be beyond the bounds of decent conduct and both men were blamed.

Today it threatens to become a pattern. McCarthy's hint of charges against a Democratic Senator is only one instance of how this practice is spreading. Here are some others.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, engaged in an adolescent prank with other boys and as a consequence a neighbor charged them with taking his car. McCarthy several times threw this up to Symington during their heated interchanges in the course of the McCarthy-Army controversy.

At the end of the hearings, Robert Kennedy, counsel to the minority on the subcommittee, charged that Roy Cohn, committee counsel, had said he would "get" Senator Henry Jackson (Dem.), Washington. Cohn even told that he is likely to be confronted with facts showing that committee investigators have run down leads involving the private lives of Senators who have opposed McCarthy.

A Democratic Senator has been told that he is likely to be confronted with facts showing that a secretary in his office was at one time a member of the Communist party. Furthermore, it has been suggested to him that evidence can be developed to show the secretary influenced his voting record.

Atmosphere of Dread. Close Republican friends of a prominent Senator believe that McCarthy has information about an episode in the Senator's life when he was a college student. These friends say that the Senator, and more particularly his wife, live in dread that this incident will be publicized.

All this is indicative of the atmosphere in Washington today. It is an atmosphere in which the poison of suspicion and distrust seems increasingly to corrode relationships that in the past have been built not only on rules and precedents, but on the normal give and take of decent human conduct.

Removal of Senator McCarthy from his committee chairmanships would help to clear the atmosphere.

A sure way to clear the air which has grown so oppressive in recent weeks would be to remove McCarthy from the Senate. Democratic Senators recall the action that the late Senator Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi had announced that he intended to do everything he could to prevent Negroes from voting in his state, plain declaration of an intent to violate the Constitution.

Although it was not known publicly at the time, northern Democrats with Republican support intended to try to remove Bilbo when he returned to the Senate after a long illness. Bilbo died of cancer and their determination to take such drastic action was never put to the test. Few Senators episode in the Senate are at hand today to remove McCarthy from all committee responsibility. Removal from the Senate would be more doubtful although some believe this could be brought about, too.

But until the Republican party, acting through the majority leader in the Senate, makes the first move, nothing will be done. Senator Karl E. Mundt (Rep.), South Dakota, who presided over the McCarthy-Army hearings, said after Hunt's suicide that McCarthy in hinting the day before the tragedy that he had charges to bring against a Democratic Senator did not have Hunt in mind. But Mundt did not further clarify the mystery. So the suspicion thrown out by McCarthy hangs over the head of every Democrat in the Senate.

Eisenhower Won't Help Meek Unless He Is for Program

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

WHITE HOUSE aids are predicting that no Republican candidates are going to ride President Eisenhower's coattails next November unless they pay for the ride by loyalty to him and to his legislative program. In this respect, one G.O.P. candidate for whom Mr. Eisenhower has little enthusiasm is Joe Meek, who is opposing Democratic Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois.

Meek is a McCarthyite who hopes Illinois voters will consider him a strong supporter of the President.

Mr. Eisenhower made his position clear at a recent meeting with Senator Carlson and Congressman Edward Rees, Kansas Republicans.

"I plan to make some speeches in various parts of the country during the campaign," the President told them. "However, there is one place I am not going and that is Illinois, unless that man Meek is willing to stand up and be counted as a supporter of my program."

Carlson, a close friend and original supporter of Eisenhower, suggested that "it isn't that bad," with respect to Meek's race in Illinois. According to a reliable account of the meeting, the President gave Carlson a "steely look" and replied:

"Yes, it is that bad, Frank. As far as I am concerned, there is no middle ground. Republican candidates are either for or against the program we promised the people."

New Crises Threaten in Korea and Indochina But U.S. Is Not Building Forces to Meet Them

Army Already Is Spread Perilously Thin—Career Personnel Are Quitting the Service.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21. LMOST anything can happen in the Far East. With the end of the inconclusive talks on Korea at Geneva, the South Korean President, Syngman Rhee, feels free to unify Korea by his own means, including war if necessary.

"Our side is free to take action," Foreign Minister Yung Tai Pyun said at Geneva. "My Government will not wait to be colonized by Chinese invaders."

The new Premier of France, Pierre Mendes-France, has promised to make peace in Indochina by July 20 or hand in the resignation of his government. While declaring that "France will remain in the Far East," he speaks of "sacrifices of territory that even now the situation does not require."

"Rear Atomic War." Mendes-France believes that "if the conflict in Indochina is not settled and settled very quickly, it is a risk of war, of international war and perhaps atomic war, that must be envisaged."

In Korea the relative military posture has changed very little. The United States has withdrawn two divisions from the Far East, but still has five Army and one Marine division in Korea and one Marine division in Japan. The British Commonwealth Division is still in Korea.

The Air Force has withdrawn one medium bombardment wing to be re-equipped with B-47s in the United States.

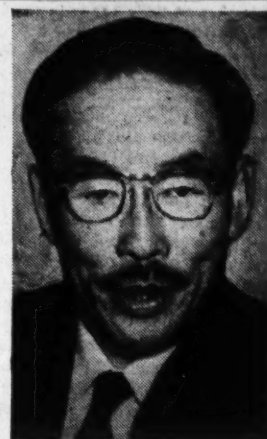

Due to rotation and the long period without combat the ground and air forces in Korea are relatively inexperienced and do not have their former effectiveness.

The South Korean army has improved steadily since the armistice. It has 20 divisions, 16 of which are battle experienced. The Koreans have organized a field army and several army corps. All their own divisions, except the First ROK Division, are commanded by Koreans through these higher commands.

Training of the South Koreans is intense. They work at it for longer hours each day and more days each week than our forces do. An extensive school system, based on American practice is maintained and the competition for higher training is intense. Many Korean officers are sent to military schools in the United States. It is rarely that one falls below the first 10 per cent of the class in final grade.

Majority of Troops Train. The front is fully occupied with all the outposts manned. The bulk of the troops are required to be within six hours distance from the main defensive positions. This permits training to be carried on by the majority of the troops.

On the other side the Chinese and North Koreans are maintaining approximately the same forces that were in North Korea when the armistice went into effect. There is no such extensive rotation on their side of the lines as there is on ours, so their ground forces are mostly battle-experienced.

Airfields have been reconstructed and new ones built in large numbers. If the conflict were reopened it is probable that the enemy would attempt to oppose the United Nations in the air from bases in North Korea.

Red dispositions are not of offensive. Most of the troops are in rear areas. Defensive fortifications have been constructed in great depth by the Reds, going as far back as 30 miles.

On the South Korean side, however, civilians, who had been evicted from the land to a depth of many miles from the front while the war was going on, have been allowed to return and take up their normal occupations. Defensively, therefore, the United Nations forces are stale has been placed in the way of inspection in North Korea. As far as the inspection teams are concerned the Chinese could have doubled their forces without the inspectors' knowledge.

It appears, though, that the difficulties placed in the way of the inspection teams have been due more to the suspicion that dominates every Communist state, rather than an effort to conceal increases in forces or equipment.

Both sides have an effective espionage system, since this is easy in a divided country. Gen. Taylor has stated that he could not definitely accuse the Chinese of any extensive violation of the armistice terms.

One result of the Communist refusal to allow the inspectors to perform their duties, while they can operate in South Korea, is that the Communists have built up a large dossier of alleged violations by the United Nations while the U.N. Command has next to nothing in the official record against the Reds.

Rhee a Dangerous Element. The 79-year-old president of the Republic of Korea, Rhee, is himself the most intransigent and dangerous element in the situation. Rhee sees North Korea and Korean unity forever lost if Chinese colonization is allowed to continue.

He is willing to fight and wants to fight. Our military and diplomatic officials have assured him in most solemn terms that he would not be supported by the United States in an aggression against North Korea.

Rhee does not believe them. He has his own American advisers who assure him that however little the United States might like it, we would have to support him if a war were started.

Either side could create incidents that could reopen the conflict. There is always this danger, but the most serious threat of restarting the war comes from the South Korean side.

The fact is, of course, that every facility has been provided in South Korea while every ob-

France in Danger of Losing North Africa as Well as Indochina Empire Crumbling Before Force of Nationalism, Abetted by Communism and Loss of Prestige.

The tides of opposition beat fiercely against the empire France built on two sides of the world. Indochina is all but adrift, and North Africa is shaken by the waves of nationalism. William L. Ryan has surveyed the prospects in both areas, as well as in France itself. This is the first of a series of articles.

TUNIS (AP).

NGUYEN NGUOC toils in an Indochina rice field. Mohammed Aly herds goats in Morocco. Political turmoil swirls about these peasants of the French empire, but it means nothing to them. They are illiterate and care little who rules them. They want to be left in peace to eke out a living the way their forefathers did for ages before them.

They are in the vast majority. In contrast is an educated crust—men like Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, Mohammed Khouane of Algeria and Allal El Fassi of Morocco. These are nationalist leaders dedicated to driving French political domination out of North Africa. It is ironic that France educated them.

Even Ho Chi Minh, Communist leader who took over the nationalist movement in Indochina, owes much of his education to France.

Once native leaders looked upon the French as miracle workers, France was strong and promised them a better way of life. The destruction of French grandeur in the wake of two world wars produced cracks in the French empire that are still widening. Indochina is slipping away in the east. A new Indochina-like problem, this one in North Africa, is brewing.

Not Scared by Force. In today's world of swift communications, propaganda, subversion and rising nationalism, the methods of a half century ago, when France was at the height of its power, do not suffice.

"Force no longer frightens us," a North African nationalist told me. "The French mass their troops and play the Marshall's to impress us with their glory and their power, but we are no longer impressed." The misfortune of France is this: It displays less and less ability to cope with the complex problem of defending its important position in today's world.

The misfortune of the people of the French Union who aspire to national independence is this: They are subject to being used by outside forces. No matter how just their aspirations sound to sympathetic ears in the West, their future is bound up with the struggle of Western civilization for survival. Political instability in areas important to defense is an expensive luxury from the West's point of view.

France's splintered politics, the tug and pull of ancient fears and prejudices, the faithful service to Moscow by Communists in Paris—all these have served to delay Western defense plans so much that the European Defense Community may never come to pass with the unity in which it was conceived.

Moscow's Game. Moscow plays with French politics skillfully. In Geneva, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov made a tough, unbending speech, and the French government fell. To be succeeded by another likely more willing to appease its way out of difficulties.

Many French politicians, ears attuned to grass roots weariness from eight years of warfare in the Far East, Asia, announced themselves willing to write off Indochina. "Let's make the best of it," became the slogan. How did it all come to pass? France consolidated its empire at the height of its power and glory. After its defeat by Prussia in 1870, France was determined to show the world it would be a world power. It

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Principle or War?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The proposals of Reader Joy C. Guze (Letters, June 16) require an answer:

1. She seeks to have the Federal Government "control" McCarthy—a citizen and an elected representative of the people—and yet have it be "more kindly" toward controversy. McCarthy, the most controversial man of this century, is "controlled" as a citizen only by law, and as an elected representative only by the voters. Controversy is not encouraged by control.

2. She seeks Federal Government action to avoid a depression, which evidently entails spending more than is received. Our debt is now $273,000,000,000. Can economic health be achieved by increasing that debt?

3. She seeks to make friends by gift. Our government has bent every effort in that direction. The pending surplus commodity disposal program is typical. But let her remember that gift in China brought us nothing.

4. Do we refuse to negotiate, to concede, to compromise? If Teheran, Potsdam and Yalta are examples of negotiation and compromise then let us have none of it. Have we not learned the hard lesson which brought about the division of Austria, Germany and Korea, and commenced the fighting in Korea?

5. Secretary Dulles was among the first to seek U.N. charter revision support. As for universal membership, that is the present goal. Any country living up to the charter principles should be admitted. But one does not hire cut-throats and thieves to guard a bank—much less the peace.

As for our present policy leading to war, shall we sacrifice principle to avoid it? To turn the other cheek to the Red-devil of Communism brings the assurance that the very least you will get is a hard slap.

J. L. H.

A Tiresome Bully

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
What was all that noise we heard in 1952 about there being a mess in Washington? Just what do they call this Republican Administration? I'll bet a dime like would like to start that famous crusade all over again. I'll bet another dime he wouldn't stop at Peoria or Milwaukee. That handshake and smile he gave to Senator McCarthy turned out to be pretty expensive, no? Anyone who has seen and heard our Joe in action these past weeks surely must know him by now for the tiresome, bullying, bragging bore that he is.

A. MORRIS.

As to a Witness

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The one-letter-out-per-day limit here at City Jail has delayed my comment on your June 5 editorial calling for an investigation of the professional witness, Paul Crouch.

It was good to see the Post-Dispatch questioning the validity of Crouch's testimony, although my pleasure in reading it was somewhat tempered by our own Crouch and denial of bail the previous day.

I never saw Paul Crouch in my life before he entered Judge Harper's courtroom during the Smith Act trial, yet I and four others here were convicted on such testimony. One of the legal points at issue is the admissibility of fantastic "evidence" by Crouch and his ilk.

The courts must also consider the fact that during our trial FBI employee Carter participated in a conference between my attorney and me to plan our cross-examination of FBI employee Jones.

I find it a bitter pill to swallow that such men are free to pursue their careers while my husband and I and others are denied even the right to bail pending the appeal of our unjust conviction.

DOROTHY FOREST.

What Is Wrong?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Another office is closing up and leaving St. Louis. The Army Engineers are moving as announced last Tuesday. Fifty employees will be leaving and the St. Louis area will be losing some $200,000 in potential expenditures.

What is wrong? Even the city fathers and Chamber of Commerce seem to have given up. As far as the citizens know, not one protest was made against the Engineers leaving. The two Missouri Senators who live in St. Louis and should take some interest therein, have so far failed to fight to keep these offices here. Have they, too, given up?

R. L. E.

A War to Stay Out Of

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
James P. Whitesides' recent letter spells out my opinion on Indochina. All this talk about intervention but never anyone talking of the cost in young American lives. France won't send a drafted soldier to Indochina to protect its colonial possession.

Nothing could please Russia more than getting us involved in an all-out war with China.

In my lifetime all wars are sold to the people the same way, and they all change nothing. What has Korea solved? Indochina couldn't be any different.

If President Eisenhower leads us into this war he is certainly going back on a solemn pledge to the American people.

Multimillion Straw Man

President Eisenhower's order directing the Atomic Energy Commission to contract with a private syndicate for a new source of electric power runs counter to long-established principles of our Federal Government and at least one of his own campaign pledges.

It overrules the decision of an independent agency, the AEC.

Three of the five AEC commissioners voted against the Mid-South-Southern Utilities Group contract to build a steam generating plant at West Memphis, Ark., at an estimated cost of $107,250,000.

It rejects the principle of competitive bidding.

AEC is directed by law to advertise for competitive bids in even as sensitive an area as the production of fissionable materials. An exception is permitted if the commission certifies "that such action is necessary in the interest of the common defense and security, or upon a showing that advertising is not reasonably practical." No such exception applies here.

It accepts an offer admittedly higher than a competitive bid would have been, if made.

AEC estimated the private plant would cost $20,569,000 a year to run, compared with $16,884,000 for a TVA-operated plant. TVA estimates that over the 25-year life of the contract it will cost the Government $139,000,000 more than if the contract had been made with TVA.

It establishes a principle of saddling a public power project—TVA—with a subsidy for a relatively inefficient private producer.

The President's order calls upon TVA to pay $1,366,000 a year of the estimated amount by which the syndicate's cost of operation would exceed what the cost would have been in a TVA operation.

It establishes a principle of saddling the AEC with a subsidy for private electric companies supplying it with power.

The presidential order lays $2,319,000 a year of the estimated subsidy upon the AEC.

It requires the electric customers of the Tennessee Valley to pay part of the cost of operation of private power companies which are well able to pay their own bills.

TVA's share of the subsidy would eventually be paid out of the revenue from its customers.

It requires the taxpayers of the nation to pay the part of the subsidy to the private syndicate that is allotted to AEC.

Where could that subsidy come from but from taxes?

It takes the risk of having to subsidize higher installation costs as well as operating costs.

The only comparable situation was the construction for AEC, in the last few years, of a TVA steam plant near Paducah and a steam plant of a private syndicate, Electric Energy, Inc., at Jopka, Ill. The private syndicate's plant cost 45 per cent more than the estimate—at costs of $184 to $198 per kilowatt of capacity. TVA's plant was finished well within its original estimate of $147.50 per kilowatt of capacity.

It runs counter to the campaign pledge of Dwight D. Eisenhower, before election, that he would do nothing to "impair the effective working-out of TVA."

Burdening TVA with a subsidy for private enterprise would impair its effective working-out about as directly and forcibly as possible.

Why has it been considered desirable to go to such lengths to obtain AEC's further power requirements from private companies instead of from expansion of TVA's generating system?

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of AEC, who supports President Eisenhower's decision, says power companies faced with "government competition" eventually are "forced to the wall." TVA has been operating for 21 years now, yet Adm. Strauss does not name one power company which TVA has "forced to the wall." To the contrary, between 1939 and 1952 the earnings of the nine power companies that were immediate neighbors of TVA increased two and a half times as much as the earnings of power companies generally throughout the nation.

Acting Comptroller General Weitzel says the General Accounting Office, "the watchdog of the Treasury," though not consulted, feels there should have been consideration of the "feasibility" of awarding the contract to the lowest bidder. And opponents of the order in Congress are proposing legislation to block it.

TVA has no vested right to supply the AEC—and the same is true of the private group. The question is: Which can do the job best and cheapest? Is it worth a probable higher cost of installation, and an undoubted higher cost of operation, to dispel the straw man of private-company ruin?

King of the Fairways

Here are three cheers and an upraised cap for Ed Furgol, the first golfer attached to a St. Louis-area club to win the National Open. On this side of the Atlantic at least, the Open is golf's greatest test of skill and heart, and the Open champion is the unquestioned King of the Fairways. In reaching and ascending the throne, the Westwood Country Club professional had to conquer a series of discouraging obstacles, including serious physical misfortune. He has earned a unique distinction for himself, his club and his community. And now, hip, hip...!

Garlotomy's Importance Asserted

In these perilous times, confused as they have been by points of order and Molotov peace proposals, we sometimes forget an old history professor's repeated admonition: "Do not concentrate too long on political events—elections, parliamentary crises, wars cold or hot; remember always that these too shall pass, and set yourself to work on lasting matters."

Now we are reminded of the lesson by the editor of The Sunday Times of London. He has not allowed himself to be diverted either by Senator McCarthy or Mr. Bevan. He and his readers have been concentrating on garlic and its after-effects. For several weeks the subject has dominated the paper's letter column.

The suggestion was made that no dish is at its best without at least a nuance of this assertive bulb. Came shrieking protests and denunciations of its "deadly disadvantage." And then all manner of suggestions for overcoming this: boil the garlic instead of using it raw or fried; chew and swallow a sprig of parsley; munch a pinch of dry tea (also recommended after onions); drink a small glass of neat lemon juice—and drink it ceremonially. Then there was the pooled experience of "the garlic chef and the undergarlic chef of a large London hotel," both experts in all branches of Garlotomy, advising that a bruised bulb be merely suspended over a dish, timing to taste.

Here is a problem which will always be with man, whether he be trying to add elegance to a poor stew or achieve the utmost possibilities of an elegant steak. Recalling our attention from the passing scene, we also have addressed ourselves to the problem. So far, we put forward only a tentative solution: Be as free with garlic on meat and salad as the spirit moves, serve a few good martinis before dinner and good whisky afterward, and no happy guest will even breathe anything about garlic.

A Neighborhood Problem

Both the present Guatemalan Government and Soviet Russia showed their hands in the tumultuous Sunday session of the United Nations.

Guatemala sought a United Nations Security Council investigation of its civil war and ran to the Russians for help. And Russia gave that help by vetoing the Brazil-Colombia resolution to send the Guatemalan problem to the Organization of American States.

Just last week Russia vetoed Thailand's appeal for a U.N. peace patrol along the Indochina borders. Coming only three days apart, the two Soviet vetoes demonstrated that Russia does not want the world looking at Communist aggression through U.N. eyes. But would welcome any kind of diversion to the American continent.

Russia is not at all likely to get away with this. The Organization of American States is a regional agency established most carefully within the framework of the U.N. Charter—and established specifically to deal with problems of the New World. It has full authority to investigate the war in Guatemala.

Certainly that war requires a fair and independent investigation by the American republics. The New World needs to know the extent of Communist influence in the Guatemalan Government. It needs to know much more about the origins of the revolt against that Government.

From news dispatches it appears that the revolt was planned and directed by neighboring Honduras, and it followed an airlift of United States military supplies to Honduras and Nicaragua, in answer to a shipment of arms from Communist Poland to Guatemala.

If the United States and its closest friends are suspicious of Russian influence in Guatemala, it is clear enough that several Latin American states are suspicious of possible North American interest in the revolt.

The Organization of American States should be capable of an impartial inquiry. It represents governments and peoples friendly to Guatemala as well as nations sympathetic to the revolutionaries. While the United States is the leading power in O.A.S., the customary skepticism of Latin Americans toward North American policy should help to keep a Guatemala inquiry on an even keel.

One thing every American republic except Guatemala can agree on is the warning which Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. gave in the Security Council: "I say to the Soviet delegate: Stay out of the American hemisphere."

Russia can keep out. The Guatemalan war is a problem for the Americas.

Change in the Senate

How much chance has to do with our national politics is demonstrated again by the tragic death of Senator Hunt of Wyoming. The Senate as elected in 1952 consisted of 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Independent—Morse of Oregon. That enabled the Republicans to organize the Senate, assume the chairmanships and take majority control of the committees.

When Republican Senator Taft of Ohio died a year ago, Democratic Gov. Lausche appointed Thomas A. Burke, a Democrat, to the vacancy. This changed the lineup to 48 Democrats, 47 Republicans and one Independent, and left Majority Leader Knowland only a minority to lead. Since the Governor of Wyoming is a Republican, he now will appoint a Republican to fill Democratic Senator Hunt's seat for the remainder of the term which expires next January.

Thus the lineup soon will be back where it was—48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Independent. Senator Knowland will be a majority leader with a majority once more. The Republicans will have actual rather than nominal control of Congress. And one of the excuses for not passing the Eisenhower legislative program will have gone a-glimmering.

Wake Up

Easy wakers should be very happy about themselves, as we gather from a report on the Western Union Wake-up Service by Meyer Berger in The New York Times. Mr. Berger tells about an exceptionally hard-to-wake individual who put the whole affair in the hands of the Wake-up Service when a battery of four alarm clocks, set in a washpan for extra noise, failed to do the job.

Among other reluctant wakers we have heard about was one who lettered insulting signs and placed them at points of high visibility around the bed, so that when roused by the alarm clock he would be angered by the signs into getting up instead of turning over and going back to sleep.

There are unquestionably those to whom waking is a kind of insomnia in reverse. They groan, they thresh about, they expostulate, but they do not get up. One person of our acquaintance, who customarily is the soul of honor, tells the most ingenious and outrageous falsehoods in the hope of being allowed to go back to sleep. To all such persons, we would say, along with A. E. Housman,

Wake the silver dusk returning

Up the beach of darkness brims...

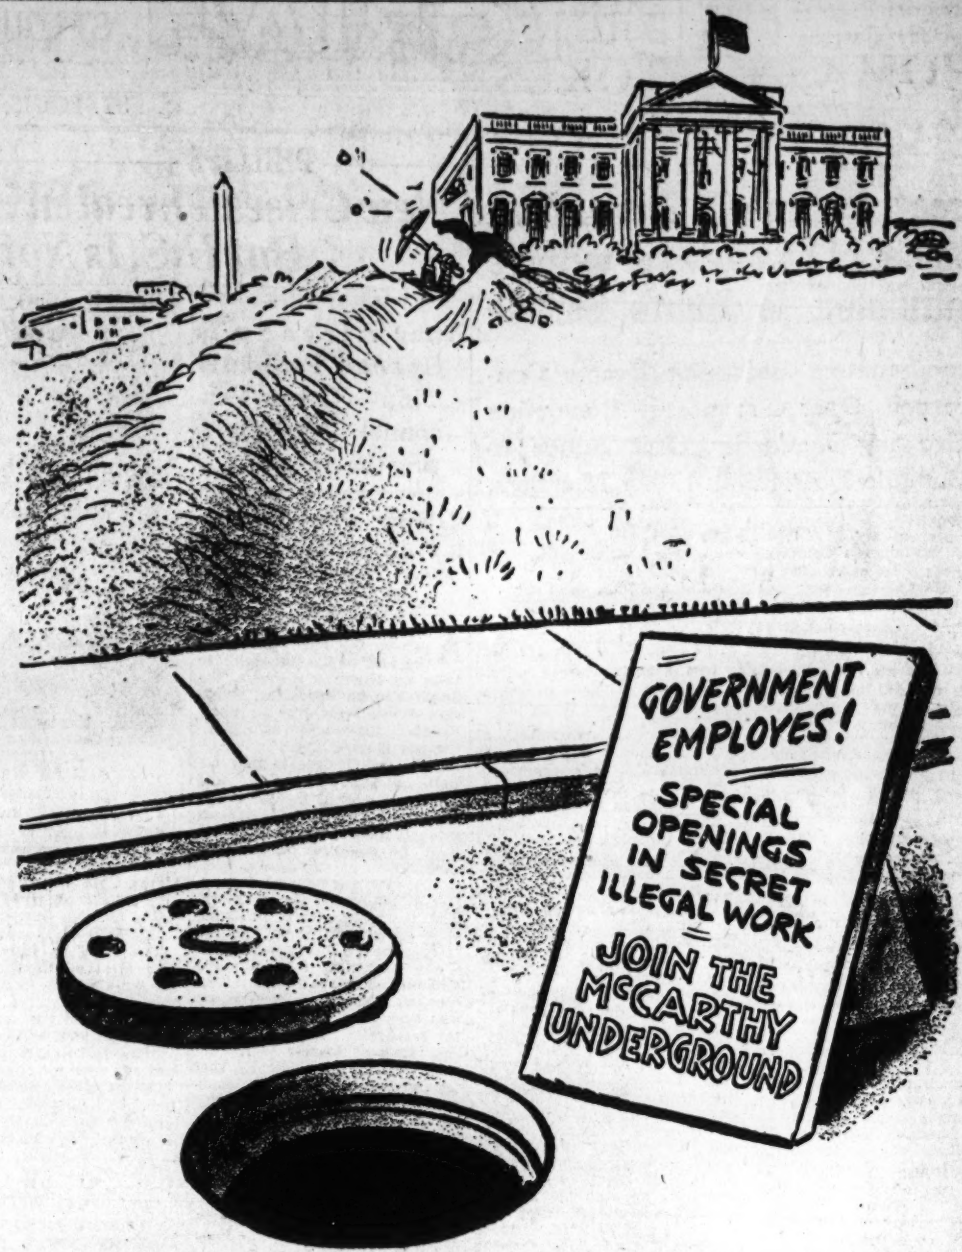

And we would only add, in our own words, that happy is the mortal who springs to the alert on the first invitation to arise—ready with sparkling talk for the breakfast table, and eager to tie into whatever day happens to be coming along!

In Contempt of the People

Democrats in the St. Louis Board of Aldermen have made a serious mistake in voting to exclude the public from hearings on the bribery allegation against Alderman Ben Oliver, Sixth Ward Democrat.

As the Republicans pointed out so quickly and so properly through their floor leader, Alderman William A. Stolar, the question of whether Mr. Oliver sought a $500 bribe to endorse a bill authorizing the sale of two city-owned lots is the people's business. That being so, the people ought not to be barred from sitting in while their business is being transacted.

Moreover, since the allegation against Mr. Oliver has not been proved, both he and his Democratic colleagues ought to be demanding that the hearings be conducted in the open. Surely the Democrats are not so contemptuous of public opinion as to invite a charge that they are attempting to cover up a mess in their own house.

MOLES AT WORK

From The Washington Post

A Maine View of the President

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Newspaper in stanchly Republican state begins to doubt that Mr. Eisenhower will make a great President "or even a moderately capable one"; says he has left McCarthyism dominate legislative scene while major foreign policy issues cry for decisions.

From the Lewiston Daily Sun

We have an Administration in Washington headed by a military man who, above most others, should be able to unscrew the inscrutable, as the saying goes.

Fortified by the immense supply of knowledge at his disposal, armed by his deep convictions and equipped by a lifetime of training to make great decisions, he should be giving America and the entire free world, the confidence and the leadership it desperately seeks.

We are beginning to fear, on the other hand, that Eisenhower may turn out not to be a great President, or even a moderately capable one. And the times demand far more than mediocrity.

For one thing, he has let McCarthyism dominate the legislative and political scene, deliberately risking a division of responsibility in the executive and legislative branches after next November.

For another, we are told on the most competent authority that France cannot hold the Red river delta against the closing in of the Viet Minh, now of all Indochina. And the Administration has said the United States will not let Indochina be conquered by military force. That means an impending decision of great magnitude, unless this country is to swallow its challenge of Red Chinese aggression. But if public opinion ready for the steps that may have to be taken to help the French beat back the Viet Minh, is Congress ready to vote the authorization the President has said he will seek?

We see no signs of it. We see no indication that, whatever the decision, the country is to be told the alternatives—the drowning of French resistance in a flood of Viet Minh attacks and the loss of Southeast Asia, or a program of assistance that will force reshaping of the budget and the national economy as well.

Far more sinister, in the long view, is the atomic race between the United States and Russia. The strategic air force of Gen. LeMay is prepared, as of today, to hurl this massive retaliatory weapon at the Soviet Union. But Russia will be in a position, before long, to try for a sudden knockout blow while she blackmails the rest of the free world into quivering terror.

The gathering clouds are growing and they are darkening, while we have religiously turned on radio and TV each day at the appointed hour to see or hear whether Welch could make a monkey out of Cohn. But from the White House we get silence, which is broken by still more silence.

No wonder earnest men of Christian faith, frightened by the prospect, are beginning to talk of preventive war. No wonder we are confused, divided, irritable and impotent.

TV's Mushrooms of Steel

From The Air Line Pilot, Air Line Pilot's Association

Antennas have always been a hazard to the aviator from the years of the roaring '20s when radio made its debut and was welcomed into the American home as no other method of public dissemination had been. But radio's revolutionary effect upon the average home life was only an early rehearsal of the greater shock which was to unfold in the late '40s when, at last, the miracle of television became a reality.

Early radio antennas almost never exceeded 300 feet in height because this was high enough to emit a good signal. But TV reception is directly commensurate with the height of the antenna and many stations, in their competitive haste to increase their listener-viewer audience, have erected tremendous spires of steel into the sky to incredible heights.

In New York City every major TV station except WOR-TV has relocated its transmitter to the top of the Empire State Building, the highest man-made structure in the world, a breath-taking height of 1474 feet above the ground. But this has had only a negligible effect upon the New York-bound pilot; he learned long ago to avoid Manhattan's skyline like the plague.

The pilot's concern is not so much with antennas on high buildings; it is the growing trend toward the raising of tremendous towers in the comparative wide open spaces where he has enjoyed freedom of movement for years that is causing him serious misgivings for the future.

Memphis sports a TV tower over 700 feet high not many miles from its fine airport; Birmingham has a modest 500-foot tower but what this antenna lacks in structural height is more than compensated for by the terrain. It is on the highest of several mountains which surround the airport. Of the cities built on fairly level ground, Atlanta is the proud possessor of a very high tower; Miami, Kansas City and Chicago have their hazards. But to Cleveland must go the grand prize for having erected the grand daddy of them all—an incredible product of the structural steel engineer's genius, a prodigious monstrosity just under a thousand feet in height!

With these tremendous towers—which undeniably bring much happiness, education and entertainment to a tense and worried world—springing up almost overnight like mushrooms all around us it seems inevitable to this writer that soon we shall be shut out of aerial corridors such as the blockade of Berlin produced when the airlift pilots flew food and supplies into the beleaguered city. How else can it end? So, if you happen to find yourself on top of a flight in the stack some low-ceilinging night and the guy below you "wastes" a couple of minutes proving his position, it will at least be charitable of you to be patient and not become annoyed with the "Doubting Thomas" non-conformist.

He is simply making sure that he does not darken Aunt Penelope's screen while she's watching Groucho.

PROGRESS MAYBE.

From the News Letter of U.S. Representative Sidney R. Yates (Chicago).

Maybe progress is being made. In an earlier Congress, according to the book, "History and Procedure of the House of Representatives," by Alexander, the following incident took place: "When Reuben Whitney was before a committee of investigation in 1837, Bailey Peyton of Tennessee, taking offense at one of his answers, threatened him fiercely and when he rose to claim the committee's protection, Mr. Peyton, with due and appropriate profanity, shouted: 'You shan't say one word while you are in this room. If you do, I will put you to death.'"

"The chairman, Henry A. Wise, added: 'Yes, this insolence is insufferable.' As both of these gentlemen were armed with deadly weapons, the witness could hardly be blamed for not wanting to testify before the committee again."

Hindu Girl in America

PRISON AND CHOCOLATE CAKE, by Nayanar Sahgal. (Knopf, 234 pp., $3.50.)

"Wherever in this wide world there goes an Indian, there goes a piece of India with him, and he may not forget this fact or ignore it."

Remembering this guiding principle of her uncle, Jawaharlal Nehru, Nayanar Sahgal has given us a kaleidoscopic view of her life from its earliest stages in a turbulent India, to her return there, as a graduate from Wellesley College.

The book has meaning in a variety of ways. Besides her close family tie with Nehru, Mrs. Sahgal is the daughter of Madame Pandit and was a close associate of Gandhi. Her childhood years marked also the start of the era of India's non-cooperation movement. Her descriptions of prison, Gandhi, the are invaluable in explaining the part success of non-resistance in our modern age.

She recalls that her first impression of Gandhi was unpleasant. He was little and ugly and the prayer meeting he conducted in her home was long and tedious. But she was to sit through many of these prayer meetings and finally to sing at one which commemorated the death of the great spiritual leader.

When the author and her sister came to the United States to enter school, they had expected to find a world apart from everything they had ever known. But American schools, American habits, and America in general, presented more often than not, similarities and parallels rather than dissimilarities. Her schoolmates at Wellesley, she fears, were rather disappointed that she was so like them and "could not provide enough Indian color to satisfy their craving for mystery and glamour."

However she does note, a little sadly, the lack of knowledge of Americans about her native land.

Through the haze of one important event after another, there are certain things, particular people that the author remembers with affection, such as the first sessions of the United Nations to which her mother was a delegate, visits to the home of Paul Robeson, talks with Sir Stafford Cripps, the Gandhian Jan Smuts, and Pearl Buck.

"Prison and Chocolate Cake" is written most informally with the author and reader almost in conversation. The tone is light and familiar. The reader may find himself regretting at times that Madame Pandit, Nehru and several of the other prominent people encountered by the author are not described more completely.

Among the 'Ridge Stars'

PLANETS FOR SALE by E. Mayne Hull. (Frederick Fox, 192 pp., $2.75.)

Are you one that can write of romance or adventure, but have hesitated at science fiction? Then "Planets for Sale" will prove just how easy it is. Instead of New York, the scene is on Delta II among the Ridge Stars. For the handsome young head of the successful advertising agency, write in Arthur Blord, owner and manager of Arthur Blord Holding Co. Instead of that big cigarette account, substitute the order for two thousand space ship motors. For the pretty secretary from the small town, read Evana Travis, "red-gold hair, a thin but determined face and a firm, lithe body." (From planet Earth.) Since Evana is a nice girl, of course, instead of several Martini's before dinner, a small injection of a rather harmless drug which only removes all inhibitions can be substituted. Naturally the evil competitors of Arthur Blord are out to get him.

But there is no need to read the book to find out what happens. You can flash it just as well yourself.

G.O.P. Cites President on Army Cut

ON ONE MATTER, the President is still "Gen. Eisenhower." That is on the matter of the size of our national defense program. On that, his party in Congress is willing to follow him blindly as "General," while many refuse to follow him as "President" on some other issues.

This is the way the argument goes: "I am basing my judgment on that of the President of the United States, who was and is a military man, the highest general we have had, who is familiar with the facts; and also upon testimony given before the committee that the two divisions are not required at the present time."

That happens to be exactly what was said by Senator Homer Ferguson (Rep., Mich.), speaking on the Senate floor. He had charge of the 23-billion-dollar defense bill that already had passed the House. He was defending a cut of two divisions in the Army which the bill authorized—a reduction from 19 to 17.

This was heavily criticized by a number of Democrats. They rallied behind Senator John Kennedy (Dem., Mass.), in a vain attempt to restore the two divisions. They lost, 38 to 50.

'General' Blocks Democrats.

In using "Gen. Eisenhower" as his argument, Senator Ferguson was only repeating what had been heard from Republicans over and over during the consideration of the defense bill in House and Senate, in committee and on the floor. Democrats found themselves blocked at every turn by the "Gen. Eisenhower" image as they argued that this is no time to reduce the size of our army.

In the House, they saw it was no use to argue against the "General." Senator Kennedy and his colleagues decided to make the try in the Senate. But "Gen. Eisenhower" stopped them too.

The Republican support of the President on military appropriations contrasts with the divisions in the party on some other issues. Notable among these is another matter closely tied up with foreign policy. This is foreign trade.

Ike Weakens on Trade.

You remember how, because of opposition within his party, the President recently abandoned, for this Congress, the comprehensive program he had submitted not long ago.

That called for a three-year extension of the reciprocal trade law and an increase of the range within which tariff reductions could be negotiated.

REGIONAL BRIDGE TOURNAMENT RESULTS

Milton Q. Ellenby and Miss Gloria Turner Win Open Pair Title.

Milton Q. Ellenby and Miss Gloria Turner, both of Chicago, won the Mississippi Valley open pair bridge championship last night in the concluding event of the regional tournament at Hotel Jefferson.

William A. Rosen of Chicago and Douglas Steen of Los Angeles placed second in the four-session contest for the Urbauer Trophy. Ellenby, Rosen and Steen were members of the team which won the national championship here last summer and then went to the Carlo de la Feat the champions of Europe in a world title match.

The student pair championship was won by Robert Marlam, 1959 Wilson avenue, University City, and Lynn Yarbrough, 9208 Lucia drive, Affton. Marlam, who attends St. Louis University, and Yarbrough, a University of Illinois student, had never played together before. In one of those chance combinations, they dropped in at the tournament, picked up a stray partner, and did all right.

Two special one-session pair games were included yesterday in the series of duplicate contests arranged by the American Contract Bridge League of St. Louis. The Jefferson City pairs event was won by Mrs. John Ditto of Chicago and Powell Meyer, 5555 Pershing avenue. The Little Egypt pair game was won by Mrs. Meyer and Mrs. Ditto.

YOUTH ISN'T FLAMING, SAYS CIVITAN LEADER

Delinquency Overemphasized, Declares President-Elect as Delegates Convene.

There is too much emphasis on juvenile delinquency as a problem peculiar to the present, Roy M. Abagnale, president-elect of Civitan International, said here today.

Abagnale, a Springfield (Mass.) certified public accountant, is at Hotel Jefferson with other Civitan leaders for the service organization's thirty-fourth convention, which began today and ends Friday.

"Ninety-nine per cent of our young people are wholesome boys and girls, and their misdeeds are often exaggerated," Abagnale declared, adding that as the nation's population increases the number of offenses by juveniles also tends to increase.

He said Civitan and other service clubs could be counted on to continue working to develop American youth along constructive lines. He deplored, however, alarmist talk about teenagers running wild.

"If you go back 75 years," he remarked, "you would find plenty of young ruffians around, some of them perhaps even worse than those of today."

Civitan's retiring international president, Ernest A. Moore of Toronto, Canada, said that 48 new clubs had been formed in the past year. Membership in Canada has doubled, he reported. About 600 of the club's 25,000 members were expected to attend the convention here.

Kenneth McFarland of Topeka, Kan., an educational consultant and lecturer for General Motors Corp., will speak at a luncheon meeting Wednesday on "Thinkin' Tall."

5 SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED BRENTWOOD HIGH STUDENTS

Five 1954 graduates of Brentwood High School have been awarded scholarships to various colleges and universities, Ernest Purkey, director of guidance for Brentwood Public Schools, announced today.

The graduates, and the schools to which they won scholarships, are Miss Sandra Armour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Armour, 1413 Peacock lane, Lindenwood College; Miles Davenport, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Davenport, 8921 White avenue, Grinnell and Drury colleges; Miss Mary Frances Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Drake, 2212 St. Clair avenue, Grinnell College and Missouri State University; Sidney Hoskins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Hoskins, 1927 Parkridge avenue, Drury College, and Miss Carol Stopp, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Stopp, 2829 Manderly drive, Missouri Valley College.

But "Gen. Eisenhower" was more persuasive with Republicans than Gen. Ridgway. So Senator Ferguson kept his party in line. He explained that the over-all military strength, which will be $37,000 by June 30, 1955, is "just twice the active-duty strength we had just prior to our entry into the Korean war."

He added that "the dollar value of the Army's current inventory of weapons, including artillery, tanks and combat vehicles, is almost double that of 1950, and the qualitative improvement greatly magnifies that improvement."

The procession proceeded west on Meramec to Compton avenue, south on Compton to Osceola street, east on Osceola to Nebraska avenue, north on Nebraska to Meramec and west on Meramec to the church.

Benediction was celebrated at the home of Mrs. A. M. Schilly, 4321 South Compton, at the main entrance of Maryville College, Meramec and Nebraska, and at St. Anthony's High School, 3114 Meramec, before a final benediction at the church. The feast celebrates the Eucharist.

UNIVERSITY CITY GIRL WINS $1000 IN ESSAY CONTEST

Ellen, who will be 15 July 6, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baron, 7023 Stanford avenue, University City. In her contest entry she cited the educational value of historical motion pictures. Her own preferences, she said, run to "musicals and murders." She plans to save the money to defray her college expenses.

Other winners: Peggy Duncan, Salem, Ill., $500; Robert L. Cook, 9623 Echo lane, Overland, $250; Mary Jo Jones, 2028 Milan street, Madison; Mallory Kleintopf, 6169 Tennessee avenue, and Barbara Mayer, 4414 Delor street, all $100. W. H. DANFORTH GIVES $100,000 TO VASSAR

To Be Used to Further Spiritual Growth of College's Students.

A gift of $100,000 from William H. Danforth, St. Louis philanthropist and founder and board chairman of the Ralston Purina Co., was announced today by Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

The money will be used to establish the William H. Danforth fund, designed to further the spiritual growth of Vassar students. Through the Danforth foundation, chapels for meditation have been established on 13 campuses and fellowships have been set up in American colleges to make possible teaching careers based on spiritual values. Danforth's gift was made in honor of his daughter, Mrs. Randolph P. Compton of Scarsdale, N.Y., and his granddaughter, Miss Ann Randolph Compton of San Francisco, both Vassar graduates.

Miss Sarah Gibson Blanding, president of Vassar, said in accepting the Danforth benefaction:

"It is important in these difficult days, when fear and suspicion stalk the earth, that those who love and believe in liberal education renew their determination that this kind of education, rooted in higher learning and great teaching, shall remain unimpaired, that teachers shall be free to teach and students free to inquire about any subject under the sun so long as the final objective is the ultimate search for truth."

What Price Track Meets?

In St. Louis it's $23,000. Tired Ozark track and field committee, happy from its month-long efforts in putting over last week's A.A.U. meet, the most successful held in this city in 37 years—perhaps the best in all St. Louis's athletic annals—is still checking over its financial audit, today. And will be for a week or more.

"Unexpected bills still are rolling in," commented John Bruen, treasurer for the committee, "but the final cost of putting on the meet will be around $23,000. . . . This will be covered by gate receipts estimated at $15,000, by $4,000 from 40 donors of $100 each and by Mr. Busch's $10,500 to cover transportation and other guarantees."

How much of the donors' contribution will be returned was a question mark — and usually is, at national A.A.U. championship meets, year after year. This time it is the St. Louis track and field event of the year. . . . And yet annually it's hard to dig up a sponsoring city. . . . The meet goes begging, unless some generous and athletics-minded persons agree to underwrite it. . . . The A.A.U. itself is poor — even poorer than the legendary church-mouse.

The cost at St. Louis was not unusual, indicating just what it takes in third attendance to put over an event of this magnitude. . . . At Dayton, O., last year, expenses passed $21,000.

Track and field sport is costly entertainment. It has to be privately supported in many instances. . . . Even the Olympics must be maintained on a pass-the-hat system to the extent of $1,000,000 in public donations, for the 1956 United States team.

Don't Let Athletics

Lapse Into a Coma.

"WHAT'S going to happen to track and field sports here in the future?" was a question put to this column and we tried to pass it along. . . . It is still with us that we'll fall right back into the old coma that has existed here for many decades.

It was bad here during 1917 when St. Louis was awarded its first National A.A.U. track and field meet. . . . That event wasn't as glamorous as the one concluded last week-end, but still it attracted the nation's best athletes.

The meet here for three days, Friday they held the junior championships, Saturday the seniors and Sunday the all-around championship, equivalent to the Decathlon. . . . The Chamber of Commerce, which underwrote the affair for $5,000, had the Monday blues.

The audit showed, if our recollection isn't double-crossing us, that the attendance for the three days was only 849! The slump in athletics here, which began about 1915 after the Missouri Athletic Club withdrew from the sports picture, became gradually worse due to the slack interest and the weak track teams of our two major universities.

The background is the same now as then and the big question seems to be: "Will athletic interest slump to its former low level?"

We put the situation up to Secretary Dan Ferris, whose long-time experience qualifies him as No. 1 commentator.

'Standing Committee' Is

The Answer, Ferris Says.

"FIRST suggestion is that the Ozark District committee which handled the championship meet here so competently be made a standing committee to keep track interest sparked up," Ferris explained.

"The members were really alive. . . . They had the kind of enthusiasm that builds up flagging interest in others. . . . Track and field is going to boom in this country for the next two years. . . . The Russian scare may have helped. . . . Our teams will soon come back from Europe. . . . The 1955 Pan-American Games in Mexico and the Olympics in Australia, in 1956, will keep up the pace."

"National Olympic day, October 16, okayed by President Eisenhower, might be a good time to put on an outdoor event, if the weather here is suitable. . . . An invitation meet for Missouri-Illinois area teams, with a special event, perhaps a marathon finish in the stadium, might test popular interest and get a few dollars for the United States Olympic team."

"It seems that there is latent interest here in track and field. . . . Build a fire under it."

Building a fire to intensify track interest here, in a paying way, has been about as easy as trying to light a piece of asbestos with a burnt match, until last week's meet. . . . And many think it still will take some high pressure salesmanship to put on an outdoor meet in October that will yield a profit for an Olympic day fund, strictly on its own as a profit-making promotion, the truly fine A. A. U. meet of last weekend would have finished in the red.

CARDINALS LOSE THIRD STRAIGHT TO THE GIANTS

Staley Is Taken Out; Mays Belts 2 Homers

By Bob Broeg

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff
NEW YORK, June 21 — The Cardinals suffered their third straight defeat at the hands of the New York Giants here this afternoon and dropped to sixth place in the National League standings. At the same time Leo Durocher's men increased their league lead over Brooklyn to one full game.

The score was 8 to 5. Willie Mays, young hitting and fielding center field star, smashed two home runs for the Giants.

Mays, hitting safely on each of his first three trips to the plate, belted a homer off Gerry Staley in the second inning and the Staley in the second inning and his twentieth of the season off Royce Lint in the fifth.

Staley, who hasn't won a game since May 19, went out for a pinch-hitter after having yielded nine hits and seven runs in four innings.

Jim Hearn, New York starter, also failed to finish, being replaced during a three-run Redbird seventh. His immediate successor, Lefty Johnny McCall, also failed to bring the frame.

Wally Moon made four hits for the Cardinals in four times at bat and Red Schoendienst contributed three safeties to the Redbirds' 13-hit attack.

Hoyt Wilhelm Hurt

In Auto Collision

YONKERS, N.Y., June 21 (AP)—James Hoyt Wilhelm, 30-year-old pitcher for the New York Giants, was injured last night in an automobile collision on the Saw Mill River parkway involving his car and one driven by a parkway policeman.

The policeman and three others suffered slight injuries.

The patrolman, John Payton, said he was making a left turn on the northbound lane of the parkway when Wilhelm's car, southbound, struck his vehicle.

Wilhelm suffered back injuries, leg lacerations and bruises of the right, his pitching arm; his wife, Peggy, leg lacerations, and another passenger, Jim Patterson, of Shelby, N.C., back injuries. Payton suffered neck and rib injuries.

Life a Bit Tardy in Being Good to Open Golf Champ Ed Furgol

SPRINGFIELD, N. J., June 21 (UP)—Unbelieving Ed Furgol stepped front and center today with all the rags to riches heroes of the sports world.

Every once in a great while a man comes out of nowhere to join the sporting greats. Jimmy Braddock did it when he came off the docks to win the heavyweight championship of the world and Pancho Gonzales walked the way across the tennis tracks to fame and fortune.

Furgol, the son of a Polish immigrant farmer who had won only one other tournament in his nine years as a professional golfer, did it Saturday at Baltusrol Golf Club when he captured the coveted United States Open championship.

It was a long-sought pot of gold at the end of the "golfer's rainbow" for this slender, dark-haired man who through most of his 37 years has made it the hard way. For life was late in being good to the personable Ed.

Weak Arm, Strong Wrist.
Born in New York Mills, N.Y., a tiny town near Utica, he was brought up at the height of the depression and admits "I had no money and no private golf club at which to play."

But there are things worse than not having money. Ed found that out, too, when at the age of 12 he fell from the parallel bars in a neighborhood playground and shattered his left elbow. Money was scarce in the Furgol household but still they managed three operations.

"The arm never did set right though," he explained.

The arm failed to grow and remained locked at the elbow. So when young Ed began to caddy to pick up a few dollars and began to swing a golf club, he had to swing it with his

"I developed my wrist and my hands to help compensate for the arm," he said.

Long an amateur, Furgol decided to turn professional in 1945 and give the tournament trail a try.

"I had $2400 in the bank and an old jockey," Ed recalled. "It was tough and go I'll tell you."

Furgol, before he came winning down front to win the open and his $6000 top money with a four-over-par 284, in nine years as a professional had won only the Phoenix Open. That meant that money was scarce through the years and thus he became a "teaching profession."

"It was the first one she ever missed," he said.

Right now he is at the Westwood Golf Club in Clayton, Mo., and his contract allows him to play in only three tournaments.

He will try to arrange to play in more of them now on his theory that "a champion should play often."

A Confident Competitor.
It is hard for Furgol to realize this late date he has won "the big one." And yet, always a confident competitor, he took his victory in stride.

"I didn't go out there to play Ben Hogan," he explained. "I went out to play myself. I didn't care about Hogan or anybody else. I knew if I play my game I can beat him—and I proved it, didn't I?"

He did, as the faith in himself which wouldn't bow to that crippling childhood accident paid off with one of the most incredible chapters in sports history.

Rough on Old Mates

PITTSBURGH, June 21 (UP)—There's no hard feelings, of course, but the Milwaukee Braves don't care if they ever see former teammate Max Surkont again.

Surkont, who was traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the big deal for Danny O'Connell last Dec. 26, beat the Braves for the third time this season yesterday. The 32-year-old right-hander won the opener of a double-header, 2-1, and the Pirates also won the nightcap, 6-3.

Surkont previously had defeated the Braves, 3-2 on May 14, and 4-1 on June 4.

Hungary and England Win Soccer Games

ZURICH, June 21 (UP)—Hungary and England joined the four teams already in the quarter-finals of the world soccer championships by trimming Germany and Switzerland yesterday.

Hungary trounced a German team which included only four regulars, 8-3, at Basle while England downed Switzerland, 2-0, at Berne.

Turkey and Italy qualified for play-off games by trouncing South Korea and Belgium, respectively. Turkey's forwards ran wild against the Koreans at Geneva, 7-0, before a meager 2000 fans. The Turks now meet Germany—the Koreans go home.

Italy experienced little difficulty in sending the Belgians packing with a well-planned 4-1 win at Lugano before a solid partisan Italian crowd. Italy now meets Switzerland in the other play-off.

Qualifiers are: Group one—Brazil and Yugoslavia; group two—Hungary and Turkey or Germany; group three—Austria and Uruguay; group four—England and Italy or Switzerland.

The squads left in the tournament will rest until the quarter-finals, June 26 and 27. Two games will be played each day.

Holman Tops in Earnings
And Handicap Victories.

NOT only are the horses of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Holman back in first place in money earnings at the Fairmount race meeting, but the thoroughbred trained by Don Kerrone have accounted for victories in three of the seven handicaps in which the purse has been $2500 or more.

When All Tilly collected the $1625 winner's share last Saturday, it gave the Holman string earnings of $18,300 against $18,020 for those of Mrs. T. M. Pruett. . . . Lucky Labie has accounted for the other two handicap triumphs for the Holman, winning a sprint May 8 and equalling the track record for the one mile and one sixteenth June 12. . . . He was timed in 1:43.5 in his first race over the longer distance this year. . . .

In the other handicaps, Little Bookie, gave Bell Acres Farm a victory, May 15; Fiesta Way won for the Pruett, May 22; Art Schroeder's Harry Lou was first in the $5000 race May 31, while Seventh Tribe triumphed in the $2500 event June 5. . . .

All Tilly's time of 1:10.3-5, two-fifths of a second off the track record, was the second fastest in any of the six furlong handicaps. . . . On May 8, Lucky Labie was timed in 1:11.2-5 in beating Fiesta Way, while Fiesta Way toured the distance in 1:10.4-5 in trouncing Fly Two Day and Lucky Labie, May 22. . . . Seventh Tribe did it in 1:10.1-5 in his victory over Lucky Labie. . . .

Another meeting of Lucky Labie and Fiesta Way came in a $1700 added race, May 15 and the Holman gelding was home in front in 1:11.3-5. . . .

Pruett and Kerrone Tied.

TOM PRUETT and Kerrone are still tied for the lead in the battle for trainer honors. . . . Each has added 13 winners. . . . The veteran Rufford Sanabria went into a tie with the suspended Tommy Oment for jockey honors when he piloted his twenty-second winner. . . . And Bob White also added another to his string (21). . . . Oment has departed for Omaha, where there should be a lively battle between Sanabria, who twice has won the riding title at the Collinsville track and the newcomer for the championship. . . .

The $500 he earned in finishing second to All Tilly last Saturday put Harry Lou in first place as the top money earner. . . . Schroeder's ace now has picked up $5630 to $5430 for Lucky Labie. . . .

Canaan Pass, a two-time winner, which had earned $1750 was lost to the Pruett via the claiming route last Saturday. . . . And Frank Ritz and Johnny Starr lost their meal ticket, Skylator, when he was claimed by Thurman Gammon. . . . Skylator had earned $2620 for Ritz and Starr. . . . He finished third in his first start for his new owner. . . .

Meet Here Artistic, Not Financial Success

Receipts Of $15,500 Reported

By Harold Flachsbart

Copenhagen, Denmark, will be the next stop for six of the champions crowned in the National A.A.U. track and field carnival over the weekend, with three of them already en route for a Danish meet a week from today.

A.A.U. officials, at a meeting early Sunday morning, named five athletes for the first trip that will include competition in Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Finland, and 12 other United States topnotchers for a British Isles jaunt.

The artistic success of the first national meet held in St. Louis in 37 years was reflected in 15 A.A.U. championship meet records that were bettered in 13 events. The 880-yard run standard was bettered three times. Four of the record-breakers are included on the two American teams selected to go to Europe. Jim Lea, crack Southern California quarter miler, was one of the quintet scheduled to depart with Manager Coach Jim Kelly of Minnesota from New York today. So was Franklin Held of San Francisco Olympic Club, javelin record breaker with a Saturday night heave of 249 feet, 8 1/2 inches.

Shelton and Bright on Team. This so-called No. 1 team, also including High Jumper Ernie Shelton of Southern California and the Los Angeles Athletic Club, Harry Bright of the New York Pioneer Club, 400-meter hurdler and half miler.

Track Athletes Named by A.A.U. For European Trips

SCANDINAVIAN TRIP.

James Lea, University of Southern California, and Los Angeles Athletic Club, high jumper. Harry Bright, New York Pioneer Club, 400-meter hurdler and 800-meter runner. Leonard Spurrier, San Francisco Olympic Club, 800- and 1,600-meter runs. Ernie Shelton, University of Southern California, and Los Angeles Athletic Club, high jumper. Manager and coach—Jim Kelly, University of Minnesota.

BRITISH ISLES TRIP.

Art Bragg, Morgan State, and Willie Williams, Illinois U., 100- and 200-meter sprints. Ralph Fessenden, Illinois, 400-meter sprint. Gene Maynard, Illinois U., or Long Stanley, Ford City, Calif., 800-meter run. Fred Dwyer, U.S. Army and New York Athletic Club, and Lowell Sellers, Josh Culbreath, Morgan State, 400-meter hurdles and 1,200-yard high hurdles. Gene Matthews, Purdue, three-mile run. Floyd Stryker, East Los Angeles Junior College, high jumper. Desmond Koch, Los Angeles Athletic Club, 200- and 400-meter dashes. Jerry Wellbourne, Columbia, O., pole vaulter. Manager and coach—Leo Johnson, University of Illinois.

And Leonard Spurrier of the Olympic Club for middle distance and distance runs—left St. Louis yesterday and had only a short New York stopover.

On the 12-man team named for British Isles competition in August were Art Bragg, the Morgan State sprinter who set A.A.U. records here in both the 100- and 200-yard dashes, and two other fleet-footed athletes who won championships here Friday night. Fred Dwyer of the New York A.C., the mile king, and Josh Culbreath of Morgan State, two-time 440-yard hurdler.

Dan J. Ferris of New York, executive secretary of the A.A.U., explained that the five named for the first trip already under way were picked because of their availability and readiness. "We asked everyone interested in European travel to have their passports ready in St. Louis so they could depart on a moment's notice, but only a few were ready to take off right now," Ferris said yesterday. "Others, although they'd like to go overseas, can't make themselves available in August, either."

Receipts of $15,500. Ferris had nothing but praise for the St. Louis officials, headed by Lamar Ottsen, who conducted the championships in St. Louis. "They lost a lot of sleep in a back-breaking job and lost many hours from business, too," Ferris said.

John Bruen, treasurer of the Ozark national committee, said no turnout count was available but that the two-night attendance was about 15,000, with gross receipts of $15,500. He said the committee was somewhat disappointed in the net financial figures, an audit of which will be completed in 10 days. Bruen will be away from the city this week.

Expenses for the two-night carnival, originally budgeted at about $22,000, may go well beyond $23,000, officials indicated.

FAIRLY FIRM TONE TO STOCKS AT CLOSING

Market Spends Most of Day in Display of Spotty Strength.

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—The stock market maintained just enough headway today to score another new high mark.

The advance was not significant and actually represented more of a marking-time effort than anything else.

A few areas displayed a measure of strength going to between 1 and 2 points while losses were almost as much in evidence in about that range.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed 65.5 at a point up at 328.56; the rail average of 20 stocks was 19.18 at 121.21, a new 1954 high, and the 15-stock utility index rose .03 to 58.03. The composite 65 stocks gained .20 at 123.28.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed up 1.1 of a point at 126.01, thus recording a new 24-year peak.

Trading was moderate at an aggregate 1,820,000 shares. That compares with 1,560,000 shares traded Friday when the market edged a little higher.

The market broadened 16 issues over Friday at 1151 issues. There were 435 gains, 426 losses and 300 unchanged. There were 52 new 1954 highs and six new lows.

The exchange reported last hour and half sales, including 70 of its inactive issues, were 520,000 shares.

Making the best showing were the motors, steels, aircrafts and electrical equipments.

Displaying small losses were the radio, televisions, utilities, chemicals, tobacco, railroads, and oils.

The market started higher and then developed an irregular price pattern featured by heavy demand in a few favored stocks.

General Instrument was down after directors cut back the dividend to 12 1/2 cents from 25 cents previously paid quarterly.

Studebaker opened on 7000 shares up 1/2 at 187 1/2 and had an early block of 6100 shares unchanged at 37 1/2. Over the weekend the companies got nearer to a merger agreement.

The cotton textile market started slowly Monday as dealers reported little follow through to the buying flurry that developed in print cloths late last week.

However, the market displayed a steady tone and mill owners were optimistic based on the ability of the market to maintain a firm price structure during the lull in activity, covering the last several weeks.

CANADIAN OIL AND GAS STOCKS REBOUND ON BOARD

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Many Canadian oil and gas stocks on the American Stock Exchange rebounded from their severe depression of Friday brought on by the decision of the Federal Power Commission in Washington to suspend a 10-cent increase in natural gas prices from United States fields and through United States pipelines.

Pacific Petroleum, Ltd., opened on 19,000 shares at 1 1/2, and was heavily traded at higher prices. Canadian Atlantic Oil started on 400 shares up 1/4 at 1 1/2 and then went higher in trading.

Webb & Knapp, which plans to take over the St. Louis Hotel, was unusually active and strong. Among higher stocks at times were Canadian Consolidated, Imperial Oil, Canadian National Petroleum, Canadian Oil Products, Canadian Petroleum, and Canadian Oil & Gas.

U.S. BONDS ARE STEADY

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Railroad bonds improved in a steady bond market today.

Utilities and industrial bonds fluctuated slightly in light of the fact that bonds were active and generally higher. However, most were minor fractions.

United States Government bonds were quiet in the 30-day 3 1/2 clip at 110 bid. But most issues were unchanged.

Greek dollar bonds firmed in an irregular foreign bond market. Reported three points at 38 1/2. Italian issues were lower. Italian 4 1/2% bonds were 154 1/2. South American bonds were active and mixed.

Tennessee Sea Transportation Co. sold $25,000,000 of 20-year mortgage bonds to an investor in New York. The bonds were headed by St. Louis and St. Paul. The offering was headed by St. Louis and St. Paul. The offering was headed by St. Louis and St. Paul.

Underwriting syndicate, managed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. won $4,000,000 of 3 1/2% bonds at 100. The 30-year bonds at auction. High bid was 100.00. The 30-year bonds at auction. High bid was 100.00.

General Baking Co., which has a payroll of 150 persons, will discontinue business here next Monday after more than 40 years of operation at 1019 North Jefferson avenue, it was announced yesterday.

Its good will and the name of one bread brand have been bought by the Walter Freund Co. for an announced amount. A Freund spokesman said "some" of the General employees would be taken over as needed.

A General spokesman said "about half" the firm's employees had been placed in other bakeries and that it was hoped jobs could be found for the rest.

Equipment and vehicles of the General plant will be shipped to other bakeries of the firm, a nationwide operation with headquarters in New York City.

The General spokesman said a major reason for selling out was the fact that its plant is partly within the right-of-way for the proposed Jefferson avenue widening. He declined to discuss other reasons, except to say that "there are just too many bakeries in St. Louis."

The widely advertised "Bond" bread label will pass from the St. Louis scene as a result of the withdrawal, but the Freund firm, whose plant is at 920 South Broadway, will take over General's "Hollywood" brand, a low calorie diet item.

The General company had entered the St. Louis field by buying out the old McKinney Baking Co., which had operated for years in the North Jefferson avenue plant.

BORROWING TO PAY TAXES?

CLEVELAND, June 21 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland today said that total commercial, industrial and bank borrowing in the Cleveland area had increased by $39,000,000 in the week ending June 18.

The bank said the increase was the first in 11 weeks and the largest since the week ending June 18, 1953. The bank said the increase was due to a combination of factors, including a rise in the prime rate and a decline in the discount rate.

The bank said the increase was also due to a rise in the rate of new issues of corporate bonds and a decline in the rate of new issues of corporate stocks.

Ad Agency English

Now They Talk About The 'Dramatic Plus'

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, June 21. THERE'S precious little in the Madison avenue file today but I'm happy to pass along what little I have to you scholars of modern English. One of the finest little sentences to come out of an ad agency conference in years was proclaimed at a Friday afternoon meeting, to wit: "Let's kick this around over the weekend and Monday morning we'll get together and cross-pollinate." Sex is creeping into everything.

JOHN CROSBY

Another and rather franker expression that you could encounter around the networks these days is "snake talk." Whenever a man's in a spot where he doesn't want to make a decision but has, regrettably, to say something, he indulges in "snake talk" which is to say he wriggles back and forth from yes to no through maybe in such a way as to keep everyone hopelessly confused as to where he stands.

ANOTHER EXPRESSION, which is coming up fast, my spies tell me, is "the dramatic plus." You can make quite a score with this one. Let us say someone is outlining before your little group an act whereby a guy dives from a 100-foot tower into a damp washcloth. From the back of the room you speak up quietly and say: "But where's the dramatic plus?" This indicates a great zest for perfection and, at the same time, tosses the ball into the other guy's court very nicely. Men have been known to make vice president on less than that.

And if you're seeking new ways to say "I like it but let's go slowly"—as who isn't on Madison avenue—here are a couple that should get you through the morning. "Let's smear it on the cat and see if she licks it off." Or: "Let's send it on a local and see if it comes back express."

You'll have to get through the afternoon on your own. That's all I got on hand at the moment.

SEEMS TO ME I've been watching Joan Crawford, suffering about something or other, since I was in short pants. As a screen star, she has set some sort of record not only for longevity but for fortitude, having suffered just about every form of vicissitude open to womankind. I rather thought she had given her all years ago. But no. She was right in there giving it all over again the other night on Campbell Soundstage. This was a tale about a woman who is told that her husband has only a year to live but she mustn't, for pity's sake, let on. It was full of rich, luscious lines.

"It seems like only yesterday that I married David."

"You can devote your life to making this year a lifetime, crowding a lifetime into it," the doctor tells her. "If he knew, it would poison every remaining moment."

WELL, SHE DOES her best. She persuades her husband to abandon his silly old money-making habits to pursue the architectural dreams of his youth. In so doing, she loses him to another woman. She has to abandon the idea of adopting a child and silently bears her husband's censure for this, though she's anxious to have a child. Ultimately, she finds that it is not her husband who is to die, it is herself.

How much can you ask one woman to endure? Especially in half an hour? I don't think any other actress could bear up except Miss Crawford who has borne up splendidly through the years and has hardly a mark on her to show for it.

This tear-drenched drama has already seen a good deal of service. It was on Revlon Theater last summer and for all I know it'll be on somebody else's series next summer, in which case I'm going to turn it off. Miss Crawford, I think, has suffered enough. And so have I.

"TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES," which must shoulder much of the blame for inflicting the giveaway craze on the nation, had a brief, unhappy encounter with television roughly four years ago. It was, to put it succinctly as possible, horrible. The stunts — dunking fully-clothed adults into watertanks, or making pretty blindfolded girls kiss a cow — were tasteless enough on radio. On television, they were unimaginably vulgar.

Well, "T Or C," as its owners like to call it, is back now, having learned its lesson. The stunts have been softened and scrubbed up a bit. The contestants no longer have such a rough time of it, though they still have a weakness for putting blindfolds on pretty girls and making them kiss something. Perhaps my sensibilities have hardened but, at any rate, I no longer think that "T Or C" can fairly be described as horrible—though, come to think of it, that's pretty faint praise.

Ralph Edwards, still executive producer of the show, has been replaced as emcee by Jack Bailey whom you may have encountered before. Bailey, an old radio emcee, is the voice of "Goody" in the Walt Disney cartoons and at various times in his life has been a circus barker, professional musician, house painter, actor, tax expert and honorary mayor of Hollywood. There can't be much left for him to do. As an example of his repartee: "What is your profession?"

"I work."

"You work? What do you do?"

I dunno, though. Even scrubbed up, "T Or C" is pretty painful stuff.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

WE have three married daughters. Two are very devoted to us, the third is very snappy to us and we seem not to be welcome in her home. When we call her on the phone she is busy. Her husband is the same to us. Don't you think her husband is at fault? She seems to think more of her outside friends than of her parents. She never calls us to see how we feel even though my husband has been sick. I never interfere in their personal affairs but it hurts us that we can't see our grandchildren. Well, Martha, I guess the only thing to do is for us to forget them—which will be very hard.

A DEVOTED MOTHER.

It not only will be "very hard." It will be impossible. But you can't force her to be thoughtful. You can't compel her to call. So my suggestion is to be as happy as possible with the other two daughters who do welcome you into their homes and keep in touch with you, and try not to let this one's thoughtlessness hurt too much. It could, of course, be partly her husband's fault, but he could not succeed in turning her completely away from her parents.

Dear Martha:

IN ANSWER TO DESPERATE and to Puzzled Person, who were going with married men! I am the wife of a man who tried this. Don't think for one moment we wives are going to set these men free for you girls. Why should we struggle to raise the children by ourselves? When a woman divorces a man, she is the one who suffers. As long as he provides a good home for us, he's mine and no young girl is taking over. She couldn't possibly have the deep understanding love I have for him. When he realizes he is giving up his own children for someone else, he knows that the love for his family is deeper and more lasting. You'll end up caring little for your own self-respect.

Dear Martha:

JUST FINISHED READING your advice to Desperate. I can sure say your advice is the only thing for her to do. I had the same experience. I was a widow and we married as soon as he got his divorce. Three years later I learned he had been living in the same house with his wife all the time he was asking me to marry him. We've been married 10 years and I am anything but happy. I had two children of my own and he only wanted them to work for him. I want a divorce now but I'm paying for going with a married man. He puts on a good front and people think he's wonderful but at home, oh dear! I hope Desperate sends this other man on his way and finds someone else but if she doesn't, she's better off alone.

ONE WHO IS SORRY.

When Men Are Gone

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

WAR and peacetime military training take young men out of the social mainstream and leave their girls to float despondently toward uncertain fates. Engagements endure or go by the board. Young women flounder in indecision and perplexity. What to do, now that dreams of early marriage are punctured? I get dozens of letters asking me for the answers. Here are some of the questions, with my best advice:

Should a girl date other fellows when she is pledged to a man who will be absent for a year or more? Other fellows, yes; one fellow regularly no! But there should be a clear understanding on this matter between the engaged couple. The girl should keep in circulation, but never allow herself to be identified with any one man.

IF A GIRL IS ENGAGED to a man overseas, and changes her mind, should she write him a "Dear John" letter or wait until he comes home to tell him?

Tell him the truth, as quickly as possible, and give him a chance to adjust to it. Few such letters require as much adjustment as the one in the story that has been going around:

Dear John: Sorry, but I changed my mind and decided to marry your father, instead.

Your loving,
MOTHER.

Can we expect that an engagement will coast along for two years or more while the boy is in the service?

If this were foreseen, the engagement should not have been started, in most instances. It is much better to keep on a mere friendship basis until you can have an engagement that means something. But if the engagement is solid and the man has to leave unexpectedly, there is no reason why the relationship should not endure if based on sufficient previous acquaintance and a genuine warmth of feeling.

IS IT WISE TO MARRY if you know the man is going to have to leave almost immediately?

Usually not, although this question can not be answered positively because no two situations are alike. But it's a very unsatisfactory start for a marriage; in most instances the couple will do better to wait and have a wedding when they can really get the most complete experience possible from it.

If they do marry in such a case, should the wife try to follow her husband around from camp to camp?

Depends on living facilities available, amount of time the husband can reasonably expect to be kept in one place, and whether the girl can get a job to support herself there, or has ways of occupying her time. When in doubt, no. Many a man in the service has told me, "I sure wish my wife had stayed home, but of course I can't tell her so."

Social Problems

By Emily Post

MOTHER writes: "My daughter-in-law is remarrying soon. My son (her husband) was killed in the war. I have been invited to the wedding and reception and also to a shower which is being given for her. Although I think a great deal of my daughter-in-law and wish her every happiness, I just can't bring myself to go to the shower or the wedding. My main problem is: Would I offend my daughter-in-law by staying away or am I obliged to put aside my own feelings and go to the wedding in order to spare her feelings and not have people believe I stayed away because I disapprove of the marriage?"

I do not think you are called upon to go through the unhappiness that you could not help but feel by going to the wedding. I am sure if you told your daughter-in-law that you love her enough to wish her happiness, she surely will understand why you are not able to be present.

Stage Debut for Margaret Truman

She'll Hide Her Feelings No Matter What Critics Say About Her as Star in Summer Stock

By Phyllis Battelle

NEW YORK, June 21 (INS)—MISS MARGARET TRUMAN, child of destiny and of an ex-President, will stroll on-stage tonight in her first legitimate theater role—that of a prim school teacher in love with a married man.

During the play she will cry twice. The part demands it. After the play she will not. Not even if the director should roar and the critics sizzle. "I dislike greatly having people know what I feel underneath," she says simply. "I get depressed sometimes, and elated sometimes, and lonely—we all do, don't we? But it has become a habit with me to hide it."

This, in a surface way, sums up the stoical, 30-year-old pride of Independence, Mo. For nearly 10 years she has put up with compliments and kicks in the emotions as a hopeful performer caught in the public eye. She has learned to slither out from under both compliments and kicks.

And if, by chance, the critics do not like her in Mountain-home, Pa., where she begins her nine-week summer stock tour as the star of a play called "Autumn Crocus"—well, the show and Margaret's career will go on anyway.

"In 'Autumn Crocus' I play a straightforward, simple woman," she says. "Who blossoms out when she falls in love. That's a part that's easy for me to get into, and I think I can do it... 'I'd better.'"

It is unknown, and Margaret isn't talking about the financial figure she will receive for her stint in stock. But it surely does not pay as much as her singing, which has earned Margaret well over $100,000 in concerts and recordings, and the reported $25,000 she will receive for six TV guest shots on NBC next winter.

But Miss Truman admits she was sort of born determined so even if she is not an electrifying success in this first stage venture she will return to New York and continue her vocal studies and fulfill her TV and recording contracts. At least until something better comes along—the only something better she can think of being "a man who needs me."

"If I should find the right man," she says with the wistfulness of a woman who realizes her mother and father's relationship, "and if he needs me, I won't want to go on with my selfish plans."

"Then I'll want to focus my whole attention on his career. It may sound old-fashioned, but when I get married I want the man to be the whole show."

She has one hard and fast rule about dating men: "I think they should be properly introduced by a mutual friend."

But she has no hard and fast rule about how they should look or act or what business they should be in: "All I want in a man is integrity and a good sense of humor. The humor is terribly important, because I love to tease and be teased. Some men don't like that—and I can't be comfortable with them."

MARGARET TRUMAN... SHE SAYS SHE'S "A SHY HAM," PLANS TO KEEP UP HER CAREER UNTIL SOMETHING BETTER COMES ALONG—AND THE ONLY SOMETHING BETTER SHE CAN THINK OF IS "A MAN WHO NEEDS ME."

If she has any worries about being an "old maid" because she is still playing the field at the age of 30, it doesn't show. "I really have no conception of people's ages," she says lightly, "even if they happen to look their age. What is age anyway—I don't think it's important."

And besides, she doesn't want to be married, she thinks she has a chance of being as happily united as "Mother and Dad."

"And mother, you know, was 34 when they were married."

Bea and Harry's devoted daughter made her admissions about life and the pursuit of domestic happiness in her three-room, twenty-ninth floor apartment in New York's elegant Hotel Carlyle. It was one of those sticky days when New Yorkers concede their city isn't even a nice place to visit, and Margaret had just melted into a chair after an all-day dress rehearsal.

"I am," she reported, "a grease spot."

She looked, on the other hand, like a spot of animation on a drab day. Her hair, once a sober ash blonde, has russet tints in it now; the famous peach complexion, which never shows up flatteringly in photos, was more enviable than ever.

The green in her eyes was picked up by her green sitting-room walls and she was grinning like the Meisen china cat which squeals in a breakthrough with dozens of other figurines in her Meisen collection.

"You see, I love show business, any form of it," she said,

"I was six years old, playing in the school orchestra at a Memorial day pageant in Independence when I decided that it was what I wanted to do. 'I was supposed to walk off-stage with the rest of the orchestra when our number was finished, but I was so entranced with the lights, and the people that I walked into the wings instead. The principal had to go back and find me after mother became worried.'"

SINCE that day, 24 years ago, Margaret admits she has been a ham.

"A shy ham," she elaborates. "I had a mother who couldn't stand fresh or spoiled children, and I was always spanked for showing off and particularly for talking back to my elders."

Since Margaret loved being around "the big people" and disliked spankings because they hurt her pride and other things, she became an obedient little girl. "Even to the point of keeping still."

This, she believes now, was the best training she could have had for her present career in the entertainment world. She can now hold herself in, hide her emotions, offset the really give out—in frustrated relief—when the curtain goes up.

"The only thing I have trouble holding inside me is my temper," she confesses. "I wouldn't say I have a quick temper, but it's solid once it comes on me. It comes usually when I see an injustice done—you know—big people undermining little people."

IT is not hard to imagine Miss Truman flaring grimly to the defense of midgets and minorities and such. Because, though she becomes more feminine and softer-looking with each year, she is a young woman who is strong and decisive in her ideas.

For example, in spite of the smoking and drinking of alcoholic beverages done by so-called New York sophisticates, Miss Truman—the modern New York career girl—refuses to touch them.

Does she object morally? "Heavens, no! I just don't feel that I need them."

Since Harry Truman departed the White House and left his daughter without a Secret Service guard—they used to be the bane of her life, especially on dates—she has had a great deal more fun with her freedom.

She goes out, she admits, three or four nights a week—trying to space them so I'm not out two nights in a row, but if anything interesting comes along, my routine is all thrown off."

Her men are usually in fields of business, law, and advertising executives. But it has lately been rumored that she is extremely fond of Cesare Siepe, big handsome basso with the Metropolitan Opera.

With him, and with others, she is frequently seen at the better supper clubs because Margaret is almost as determined to enjoy her new freedom as a sought-after and handsome young woman as she is to pursue her yearned-for career.

Meantime, Margaret spends a great deal more time on her appearance. Although she claims she isn't "mad about clothes—I just like a pretty dress," her wardrobe is increasingly chic since Papa moved out of the White House and Margaret moved into the New York social whirl.

She wears the sophisticated colors—grays, blacks and navy blues—"although I'm getting awfully tired of this chic, sleek look, I can tell you, I'd like to wear a pink dress again sometime."

She no longer watches her diet. "Thank heavens!" "Four years ago," she recalls smugly, "I purposely watched my weight and dropped 15 or 20 pounds. Never got it back."

Now the only time I think about it at all is when I want a hot fudge sundae. I think a long time then. Then I have it."

SINCE the throw-in play is perhaps the most useful weapon in the declarer's armory, it naturally follows that the defenders must be eternally alert against this threat.

Graduation Festivities In the East

By Frances Conant Richards
NEW YORK, June 21.

THERE was a peak season in graduations around the East a week ago. St. Louis families were here in droves, running in and out of town to campuses, back to New York, then off again to colleges and boarding schools for commencement festivities. Mr. and Mrs. Neal S. Wood arrived late last week with their daughter, Josephine. Young Robert Wood held the family spotlight last Saturday when he stepped up for his diploma at Lawrenceville School in Lawrenceville, N.J. Jo and her parents were on deck for the celebrations. The following day she went to Morris, Va., for a visit and Mr. and Mrs. Wood returned to St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Conant, their daughter, Jane, and the Spencer Olins were in the Congregational Church in Farmington, Conn., last Saturday afternoon when both Louise (Gigi) Conant and Judy Olins received white diplomas tied with yellow ribbon. After graduation and the daisy chain, Gigi drove over to Long Island with a classmate and her parents to go to a dance and spend the night in the country. The Conants were reunited in Penn station Sunday afternoon to start back to St. Louis.

Teddy Baldwin, Peter Hubbard and Ronald Fraser sat under the trees in the shade of Old Nassau Hall Tuesday morning to receive their Princeton diplomas. Parents of the three seniors were among the hundreds gathered to watch the impressive ceremony and awarding of honorary degrees. President Dodds opened the proceedings by announcing to the wary audience that both New York and Philadelphia weather bureaus had said, "No Rain." The prediction proved true and the morning, as well as the program, was perfect.

Charlie Limberg was in Princeton late last week for several days of activity on the part of the class of '39 and their fifteenth reunion. Suzie Limberg and Charlie made their New York headquarters at the New Weston. They spent several days here checking up on the news with old friends and going to the theater.

Mrs. J. Frederic Schaffly has just wound up a two-week visit with her daughter, Eleanor, here in town. Eleanor and Barbara Bitting share an apartment in the John Murray House down on Madison in what is still referred to as the Murray Hill section. One jaunt of particular interest to Mrs. Schaffly was the trip she and her daughter took to the country to see the new headquarters of Manhattanville College. The college moved last year to Ophir Hall, the country estate formerly belonging to the Whitelaw Reids in Purchase, N.Y.

Mrs. Arthur M. Clifford, her sister, Mrs. John S. Trille, and their brother, Karl Hohlitzelle, have met for the start of their annual summer reunion. Karl Hohlitzelle flew up from Dallas to join his sisters—Mrs. Clifford of Pasadena and Mrs. Trille from St. Louis—for a week in New York. Tuesday the family group left for Cotuit, Mass., to spend the summer in the Hohlitzelle cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Shands Jr., who were residents of Cambridge, Mass., until his recent graduation from Harvard University School of Law, have come here to live. Mr. Shands, son of Capt. and Mrs. Courtney Shands of Washington and his parents formerly lived here. He and his wife are staying with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine F. Jones, 507 North Taylor avenue, Kirkwood. He will be associated here with Thompson, and Douglas, a law firm.

Two members of this year's graduating class at Mary Institute, Miss Julie Gilbert and Miss Mary Ella Coe, will enter Wells College, Aurora, N.Y., next fall. Miss Gilbert, daughter of Mrs. Philip Gilbert, 218 Tiffin avenue, Ferguson, is the winner for next year of the Middle West Competitive scholarship offered by the college. Miss Coe won the St. Louis Wells College Club Community Activity Prize. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

MRS. DAVID HILL SMITH

Carolyn Sally Schorr, Ens. David Hill Smith Are Married at Church

MISS CAROLYN SALLY SCHORR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Schorr, 7227 Winchester drive, Pasadena Hills, and Ens. David Hill Smith were married Saturday night at Normandy Presbyterian Church. White flowers and greenery illuminated with white tapers provided a background for the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Grant O. Jennings.

Miss Barbara Dye was maid of honor and Miss Jane Smith, Miss Marcella Wilkerson and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Rebecca Smith, were bridesmaids. Kent Smith was best man for his brother, Floyd W. Smith, 6812 Myron avenue, Normandy. Ushers were the bride's brother, William P. Schorr; Kenneth Dillard and Robert King. Mr. Schorr gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride wore a white tulle gown over taffeta trimmed with re-embroidered alençon sprinkled with pearls and sequins. Her fingertip illusion veil was held in place by a taffeta cap appliqued with alençon lace. White orchids and stephanotis composed her bouquet.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids were in aqua crystalline dresses styled with ballerina skirts and shrug jackets over strapless bodices. They wore matching hair bands, trimmed with short veils, and held bouquets of pink roses.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Schorr gave a reception in the Frontenac room of Le Chateau. Mrs. Schorr wore a gray blue chiffon gown and Mrs. Smith chose a mauve lace costume. Both had white orchid corsages.

Ens. and Mrs. Smith will stop at Western resorts on their way to Coronado, Calif., where he is to be stationed with the Navy. He received his commission June 12 on his graduation from the University of Missouri.

My Day Annual Picnic For Wiltwyck School Boys

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. I WENT up to Hyde Park very early on Saturday because at noon we were having the annual picnic for the boys from Wiltwyck School. Last year we had only 61 boys. This year there were 100.

These youngsters, as you may know, are New York's boys between the ages of 8 and 12 committed to the school by the courts, sometimes for very serious offenses. We hope to create a pattern of treatment at the school which may be helpful to the boys, but we work also with their families in the hope of returning them to their own homes if the life there can be improved. If not, foster homes must be found. In either case, an effort is made to keep in friendly touch with every boy who is judged well enough to go back to his city environment and to regular public school.

WILTWYCK HAS no high walls or barred wire around it and at one time there was considerable hesitation among our neighbors as to whether they really enjoyed having the Wiltwyck boys nearby. But every year the contacts seem to improve.

There have to be very able counselors to look after the boys—more of them, of course, than in an ordinary school. There are no lessons in summer, so the boys move into camp, where much nature work and many outdoor activities are developed to keep them busy and to improve their health, for these youngsters need physical, intellectual and emotional care.

I always enjoy having the boys for the annual picnic, but I am always surprised at the amount they can eat! We count 150 guests in all, and we provide 450 hot dogs and rolls, quarts and quarts of milk, untold pounds of salad and ears of corn, ice cream and cup cakes. There is never anything left!

SATURDAY EVENING I had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., who are soon off to Europe for the summer months.

Sunday morning I drove back to New York because, in the early afternoon, rehearsals had to begin for the Adventure TV show for which I had been asked to do some of the narration. This was fun to do and I enjoyed very much the picture of Marco Polo's travels.

I have traveled to some of the same places; but it is far less adventurous today than it was in the days of Marco Polo, who traveled for so many years and went over so much completely unknown and uncharted territory. When you know nothing about a specific area, you are apt to people it with all kinds of imaginary terrors, and that is what the people of the Thirteenth Century did. It therefore must have taken great courage, which modern travelers do not require, for we know fairly well what we are apt to find wherever we go.

New Potatoes

A good scrubbing will remove most of the skin of new potatoes. After boiling the potatoes, the rest of the skin will come off easily.

To cook young tender greens cut from the tops of beets, put the leaves in a covered pan without water and steam about 10 minutes. If you have just washed the leaves there will be enough water clinging to them to make steam.

International Designer's Pattern

PARISIAN designer, Charles Montaigne, is typically French in his thinking even when he is thinking in terms of fashion. Like most Frenchmen, he believes in being practical, but never so practical that he sacrifices style. His latest dress and jacket costume is proof of this, for he designed it to allow the wearer a wider range of conquest. The body of the dress is simplicity itself, but it takes the knowing craft of a Parisian to dart and seam the midriff in a way to whittle inches from that area. Notice how he points his seams under the bodice and cuts deeply into the neckline. Why?—to achieve a prettier bosom line. Alone, the dress is an informal dinner, a cocktail mixer, can even appear for lunch and afternoon fetes, depending on fabric choice. With its abbreviated jacket, showing off to full advantage that carved-in midsection, it can begin a day as early as nine. A 10-piece pattern, it is easy to make and M. Montaigne suggests your making it in linen, cottons, shantung, faille, the silk, alpaca or any of the 48-inch width materials.

This pattern is cut in DESIGNER sizes.

Bust	Waist	Hips	Sizes
34	24	35 inches	10
35	25	36 "	12
36½	26½	37½ "	14
38	28	39 "	16
40	30	41 "	18

Pattern S-224, size 12 requires four and one-half yards of 36-inch material for dress and bolero.

CHARLES MONTAIGNE OF FRANCE

Mr. President!
Mr. Sales Manager! Mr. Merchandising Manager!
Here is a sure way to INCREASE your SALES
-with no added sales cost to you!

Eastern's "Incentive Vacation" Plan is working for hundreds of business organizations right now!

A COMPLETE VACATION YOUR SALESMEN WILL WANT!

Here's what it takes to keep your organization pushing right through the year—a fun-packed, health-renewing, morale-building free vacation, at the world's year-round playground, Miami Beach...or at fabulous Puerto Rico...at the world's greatest city, New York, with its thousand and one attractions...or a visit to the Nation's Capital, Washington, D. C....and last but not least, fascinating historic New England, the cradle of our civilization...or at other fascinating vacation areas.

Tell them that the more they sell, the longer they stay...tell them they're working for themselves when they work just a bit harder...tell them that here's an unexcelled opportunity to trade the daily grind for the blue of the Sky and the magic of the Moon. Yes, tell them all about it—and watch those sales zoom!

A POWERFUL INCENTIVE FOR ADDED PUSH!

Use the glamour of such places as Florida and Puerto Rico and the charm of New England as a weapon in the struggle for more and bigger sales. You'll find that one picture of the charm of these fabled lands is worth a thousand words. Everyone loves a vacation...everyone loves to relax...and everyone makes an extra effort when you can offer that extra incentive. Make your own job easier and increase your sales volume! DO BOTH WITH EASTERN'S "INCENTIVE VACATION" PLAN.

EASTERN HELPS YOU TO KEEP THEM SELLING!

Here's how the "Incentive Vacation" Plan works. First, you tell your salesmen, distributors and dealers that their extra sales can now earn for them, their wives and families, a sun-packed, fun-packed, vacation at Miami Beach or Puerto Rico—that a wonderful time is theirs at these world-famous playgrounds the moment they make their quotas. THEN WATCH THE SALES SPARKS FLY!

While the sales drive is on, Eastern will help, if you wish, with a continuous stream of reminders to your sales, distribution or service team about the famed attractions of Miami and Puerto Rico. For example, a small bag of sand will carry the message. Here's a part of your beach at Miami—if you make your quota! A note from the manager of a San Juan hotel will offer "a beautiful room overlooking the Emerald Isle of the Caribbean—if you make your quota!"...there's no limit!

Eastern then flies all "Incentive Vacation" winners in luxury to the land of the sun and the gods...takes them from the airport to accommodations at a leading hotel...and then, after the time of their lives, flies them home again refreshed and exhilarated and ready for even greater quotas.

fight for LOVE

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.
VI WAITED for two hours in David's outer office. She had gone without an appointment, fearing he might refuse to see her. But David was in court, and at closing time he didn't return to the office.

She had decided to come to an understanding with David. About what, she wasn't exactly sure. But she needed to talk to someone, needed to get a little sympathy and a little support.

She was completely confused and at a loss to know where to turn. Still angry at Cliff for his attitude toward her, she knew deep in her heart that Cliff had been right.

By the time she got back to the apartment she was in a state of nervous agitation. Milly wasn't there, and had left no note.

It was now past dinner time and Milly was always at the apartment at that hour. "She's trying her experiment. I never should have let her do it," Vi thought.

She went to the closet and saw that the plaid coat was gone. "That means she went to Ava. She promised she wouldn't go to Plato," Vi cried.

She called Ava's number. There was no answer.

Thoroughly frightened, Vi rushed down to her car, and drove rapidly to Ava's apartment. There was no answer to Ava's buzzer.

Vi went down to see the landlady.

"Miss Todd went out of here with another girl and two men, about half an hour ago," she told Vi.

"Was the other girl wearing a blue and white plaid coat?" Vi asked anxiously.

"Yes, she was. The men were big men, I never saw them before."

"The reason I noticed them, there was a lot of noise up in Miss Todd's apartment. You could hear it all over the building and I got worried. So I was watching and saw them leave. There were two cars, and they drove away, one girl in each car."

She looked at Vi curiously. "Something wrong?" she asked.

"I don't want my place to get a bad name."

"I hope not," Vi replied. "But I'm worried. The girl in the plaid coat lives with me—"

She decided she shouldn't tell the landlady too much. "I think we should look in the apartment," Vi suggested. "Do you mind? We might find something that would indicate what had happened up there."

The woman hesitated. "I wouldn't want to do it," she said. "It's very irregular."

"But it might be important. I don't want to call the police—yet."

The woman paled. "Oh!" she exclaimed. "Is it that bad? Come on."

THEY went up to Ava's door, and the woman opened it with her pass key. A chair had been knocked over. A glass cigarette box was broken.

"What happened?" the landlady demanded. "You know something. What's going on in my apartment?"

"I haven't the slightest idea," Vi said. "But please say nothing about it. I'll try and find Milly myself."

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

PERHAPS you read an article which I wrote about eclipses 16 months ago. In that article was a paragraph which spoke of the total eclipse which is due on the last day of June this year. I spoke about this again the past December.

Now there is growing excitement about the coming event. Millions of persons are planning to watch the total eclipse, and some will make trips of hundreds of miles, or even thousands, to be on the dark pathway.

OUTSIDE OF the pathway, there will be a partial eclipse of the sun. California and much of Mexico will miss even a partial eclipse, but most people on the continent will be in for the treat—if they wake up early enough.

Astronomers will go to various places to make studies. The band of darkness will stretch from Nebraska through Minnesota and western Ontario to James Bay at the southern end of Hudson Bay. Later it will cross the Atlantic, touching southern Greenland, and will continue through Europe and far into Asia.

Canadian astronomers will take a prominent part in study of the eclipse. One party—from the Dominion Observatory—will be stationed near the village of Oba. Another party, from the Astrophysical Observatory, will take another station between Lake Superior and James Bay. These astronomers have a special purpose in mind—to learn more about the "flash spectrum."

DURING EACH solar eclipse there is a beautiful burst of light just before the eclipse becomes total. For two or three seconds, photographs can be taken to help provide the needed facts about the flash spectrum.

I want to thank Dr. John F. Heard, president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. Dr. Heard has sent me advance information about the flash spectrum plans, and explains that cloudy weather may spell the chances for good work. That is why the three parties will take stations many miles apart.
